Canadian politicians, Public Health Officials and healthcare leaders committed many serious crimes during the COVID-19 pandemic, but one of the most heinous was the forced COVID-19 mRNA vaccination of healthy child athletes in 2021-2022 so they could continue to play sports. Here are some of Canada’s youngest athletes who died suddenly in the past 3 months.

Presley Clara Rose Wilchuck (age 13) (died January 13, 2023)

At such a profoundly sad time, the toughest subject for Rod Wilchuck to tackle is in some ways the easiest.

As reported by the Regina Leader-Post: (click here)

“Presley was introduced to the Regina Victorias — Regina Minor Football’s first all-female team. As a second-year defensive back with the Victorias, Presley helped her team win the 2022 Prairie Girls Football League championship on Oct. 27.

At the Victorias’ awards banquet, held in November, Presley was named the team’s most improved player. Presley was part of the youngest age group when she joined the Victorias in 2021, as a Grade 7 student. The oldest players are in Grade 12.

“She would go up to the coaches and say, ‘Put me in. I’m not scared,’ ” Rod Wilchuck remembers.

Jeremy Riendeau (age 10) (died January 3, 2023)

Our EMS and CFD families have suffered an immense loss in which can never be mended. Mourning the loss of sweet, sweet Slade. A parent should NEVER have to bury their child - much less have to burden the cost of a funeral and life's many expenses through it all. While so many of us struggle with how to help such a lovely family in a time of such immense tragedy, this is just a small way that we can help. While the family would never ask for anything from anyone, as an Emergency Services Family, we want to at least try to help ease the financial burden for them while they take the much needed time they need to mourn the loss of this sweet boy.

A celebration of life service for a 9-year-old West Kelowna girl who died in late November in Kelowna General Hospital will be held tomorrow, Dec. 9

Ayla Grace Loseth was taken to hospital by her parents Chrissy and Brad on Nov. 26 with dehydration, nausea and fever. They were told it was the flu but, three days later, she died from sepsis from Strep A, her aunt Katie told iNFOnews.ca.

"Ayla was a beautiful and vibrant presence to all who knew her," says an obituary posted online by Springfield Funeral Home. "She was gifted, artistic and incredibly talented; she generously shared her singing, dancing and artistry with anyone she came across. She was a very social girl and enjoyed being around people."

She loved animals, including her cat Moose and dogs Blue and Sally. She was an accomplished equestrian who loved her pony Holly and horse Titanium, the obituary said.

"Ayla showed her warm and caring nature in most everything she did and loved to help," it read. "She had a strong sense of responsibility and took exceptional care of her baby brother Leighton, who she loved dearly."

The celebration of life service will be at Trinity Church Kelowna at 11 a.m. tomorrow, Dec. 9.

Ayla’s family expressed concerns about the medical care that she received (click here):

“The family has raised questions about why Ayla was not put on antibiotics earlier”

“Nothing seemed urgent enough until it was too late.”

A flood of grief is sweeping over Richmond, after the family of a six-year-old girl says the child's life was cut tragically short following complications from the flu last month.

While the family of Danielle Cabana is mourning the overwhelming loss, they've also been met with a huge show of support.

Danielle was a member of the Richmond Ravens U7 girls hockey team.

The Ravens and the Richmond hockey community are honouring her in several ways including 29 seconds of silence – in honour of Danielle's jersey number – a tribute teams in the league and beyond are also taking on.

My Take...

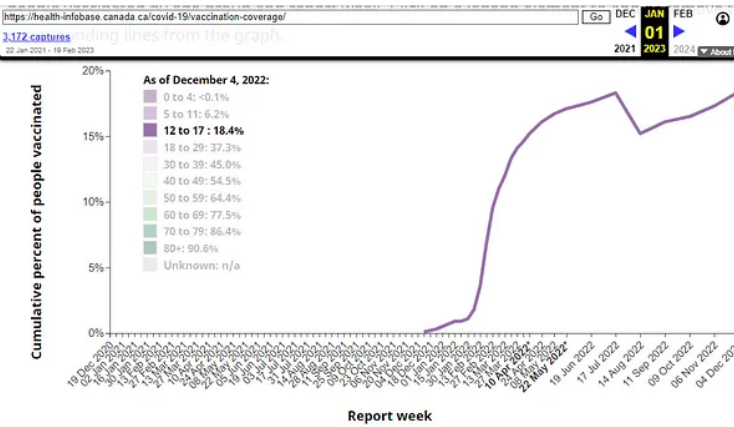

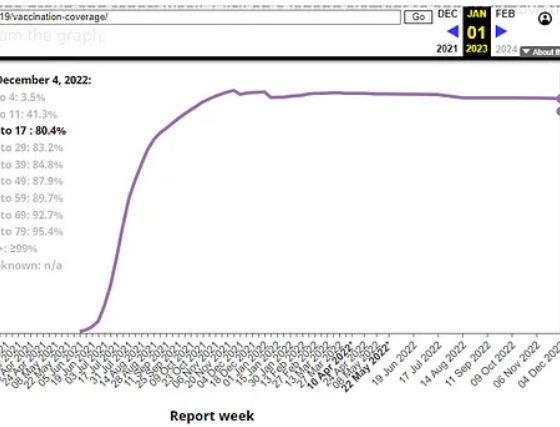

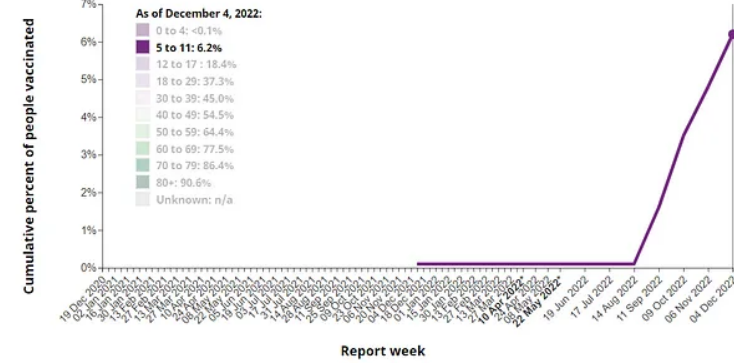

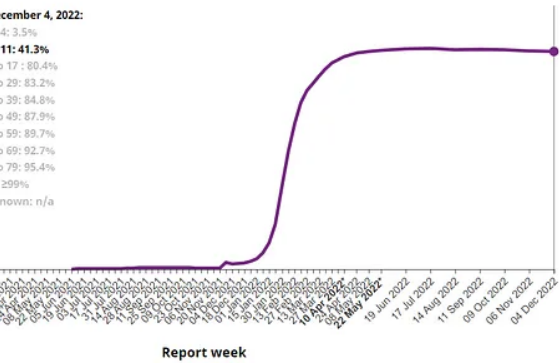

I believe COVID-19 mRNA vaccines severely damage the immune systems and hearts of young children. This damage may take 6-12 months to fully manifest.

Not surprisingly, Canadian health authorities are trying to pretend these sudden deaths of Canada’s youngest athletes are not happening.

However, they can only ignore this serious problem so long.

The graphs below show 2-dose mRNA uptake on the left and booster mRNA uptake on the right, as percentage of all Canadian children ages 5-11, and 12-17.

The Canadian government stopped publishing these graphs in January 2023.

Dr. Zelenko warned of “child sacrifice” if I recall his words correctly. Sadly seems to be coming true.
