A 'woke' teacher has come under fire after telling a pupil she should 'go to a different school' for rejecting a classmate's claim that she identified as a cat.

The pupil said she was made to stay after class by the teacher, who can be heard in a secret recording calling her view that gender is binary 'really despicable' and 'very sad'.

In the three-and-half-minute recording, the angry teacher, who the Mail is not naming, said they would report the girl to a senior colleague, and she needed a 'proper educational conversation about equality, diversity and inclusion'.

The recording at Rye College in East Sussex begins with the teacher asking the pupil: 'How dare you? You just really upset someone, saying things like [you] should be in an asylum.'

The girl responds: 'I didn't say that, I just said if they want to identify as a cow or something, then they are genuinely unwell, and they're crazy.'

'You were questioning their identity,' the teacher replies. 'Where did you get this idea from that there are only two genders?'

'I just said my opinion,' the pupil replies. 'If I can respect their opinion, can't they respect mine?' The teacher goes on to assert there are 'lots of genders' including 'transgender' and 'agender'.

She then links the girl's gender-critical attitude with 'homophobia', adding: 'It is not an opinion... if you don't like it, you need to go to a different school'.

The girl defends herself by saying she was respectful, but admits she felt compelled to ask her classmate 'how can you identify as a cat, when you are girl?'

The teacher does not refer to anyone identifying as a cat in her remarks on the recording.

Rye College was yesterday bombarded by thousands of angry social media messages after the recording went viral.

A spokesman admitted to the Mail that the teacher should have acted differently, by 'ensuring that pupils' views are listened to' and 'encouraging them to ask questions and engage in discussion' - instead of angrily shutting down debate on a controversial issue. The spokesman said they would make sure 'such events do not take place in the future'.

The secondary school is graded as good by Ofsted, and in its previous incarnation as Thomas Peacocke Community College, boasts Stella McCartney as an alumnus. It is a member of the Aquinas Trust, which boasts that one of its key values is 'promoting equality, celebrating diversity, and addressing disadvantage'.

The trust's equality lead, Barry Blakelock, is also executive head at Rye College. His official bio reads: 'Barry believes the best education is an inclusive education - where the diversity of the real world is reflected in every classroom to the benefit of all learners.'

In February, the trust was criticised over plans to 're-educate' children who make non-PC comments in the playground.

Sounds to me like the girl is far more intelligent than the teacher. She doesn't seem to be allowed to give her opinion but I'm sure she'd be allowed if she was on the other side of the fence. Whatever happened to free speech!

I found the problem when I was at school back in the late 90s/early 00s was that the young teachers, especially the women, wanted to be mates with the cool kids (my maths teacher who must have been maybe 25-27 in particular). I found it really weird even at the time as they were the ones who performed poorly and acted out. Looking back now, I can only assume they were unpopular themselves and saw it as some weird redemption.

What are they doing to our kids? My daughter read the article re sex education yesterday and said if this is how schools are run she will be home schooling her own daughter who's just 10 months. My other granddaughter- 9 - had a lesson last week (content not shared with parents). 3 children were so traumatised and upset they had to leave the room.

Teacher should be sacked. Girl has genuine opinion as long as said respectfully perfectly valid. She's not forced to submit to teacher's views. Hers are more factual. Anyone can believe what they want, but physical facts are facts.

So called freedom becomes totally oppressive. Such a farce it's troubling to say the least. The child concerned sounds level headed. Good response!

The is the calibre of teacher and rubbish being pushed in our schools now. No wonder GenZ seems like a bunch of flakes unable to deal with the world. Is there no one in charge running the Ministry of Education? If you can afford it, send your children to church schools or private schools.

The teacher was abusive and intolerant to debate. She has no right to be any where near children, should be sacked and possibly banned.

Teachers really need to stick to teaching what they're meant to and let children have their own opinions. My daughter is only 1 and I really hope that this has all blown over by the time she's due to go to school!

The way the teacher spoke is very concerning. Why is that acceptable? And why has she retained anonymity when other teachers who find themselves on the other side of the argument are identified, pilloried, bullied out of their jobs, cancelled and worse?

	The problem is that these teachers are with our children for 6-8 hours a day and are able to spew their rhetoric in their naive and susceptible young minds. It's really frightening how they exercise this control and warp children to their way of thinking
