Pfizer Has a Long History of Fraud, Corruption and Using Children as Human Guinea Pigs

Pfizer's CEO Albert Bourla claimed during a November 2021 interview that a small group of "medical professionals" who are intentionally circulating "misinformation" critical of the Pfizer vaccine narrative are "criminals," but Bourla didn't mention the criminal history of his own company.

One of the most significant cultural transformations of the last two years has been the newfound glorification of the pharmaceutical industry.

An industry plagued by decades of fraud, corruption and criminality managed to quickly rebrand itself as the savior of humanity during the COVID-19 crisis.

But nothing inherently changed. Big Pharma still values shareholders' profits more than people's lives.

The regulatory agencies still operate as revolving doors to the pharmaceutical giants they are said to regulate.

Big Pharma still dominates lobbying efforts in Washington, D.C., and spends billions each year advertising pharmaceutical products.

Despite the notorious corrupt nature of the pharmaceutical industry, Pfizer's CEO Albert Bourla claimed during a November 2021 interview that a small group of "medical professionals" who are intentionally circulating "misinformation" critical of the Pfizer vaccine narrative are "criminals."

Under the settlement, Pfizer also agreed to pay $9.25 million in coming years to monitor patients who received the device at Veterans Administration hospitals or pay for its removal.

The deal was criticized by consumer rights activists who urged Government officials to bring criminal charges and lobbied for a steeper civil penalty for the multibillion-dollar company that had covered up safety concerns even as the device was killing patients.

A report by Nigeria's health ministry concluded the experiment was "an illegal trial of an unregistered drug," a "clear case of exploitation of the ignorant," and a violation of Nigerian and international law. Pfizer did not obtain consent or inform the patients that they were the subjects of an experiment, not the recipients of an approved drug.

Pfizer agreed that it aggressively marketed the epilepsy drug illicitly for unrelated conditions, including bipolar disorder, pain, migraine headaches and drug and alcohol withdrawal. Pfizer's tactics included planting company operatives in the audience at medical education events and bribing doctors with luxury trips.

- In 2008, the New York Times published an article entitled "Experts Conclude Pfizer Manipulated Studies." Pfizer delayed the publication of negative studies, spun negative data to place it in a more positive light and controlled the flow of clinical research data to promote its epilepsy drug Neurontin.

Pfizer discontinued its marketing program for Neurontin in 2004 after the drug became available as a generic. That same year, the company paid $430 million to settle federal criminal and civil claims that one of its subsidiaries had promoted the drug for unapproved uses.

Experts Conclude Pfizer Manipulated Studies

By Stephanie Saul

Oct. 8, 2008

T.ME/KANEKOATHEGREAT

The drug maker Pfizer earlier this decade manipulated the publication of scientific studies to bolster the use of its epilepsy drug Neurontin for other disorders, while suppressing research that did not support those uses, according to experts who reviewed thousands of company documents for plaintiffs in a lawsuit against the company.

Pfizer's tactics included delaying the publication of studies that had found no evidence the drug worked for some other disorders, "spinning" negative data to place it in a more positive light, and bundling negative findings with positive studies to neutralize the results, according to written reports by the experts, who analyzed the documents at the request of the plaintiffs' lawyers.

One of the experts who reviewed the documents, Dr. Kay Dickersin of the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health, concluded that the Pfizer documents spell out "a publication strategy meant to convince physicians of Neurontin's effectiveness and misrepresent or suppress negative findings."

- In 2009, Pfizer was fined $2.3 billion, then the largest healthcare fraud settlement and the largest criminal fine ever imposed in the U.S. Pfizer pled guilty to misbranding the painkiller Bextra with "the intent to defraud or mislead," promoting the drug to treat acute pain at dosages the FDA had previously deemed dangerously high.

The government alleged that Pfizer had paid kickbacks to compliant doctors and also promoted three other drugs illegally: the antipsychotic Geodon, an antibiotic Zyvox and the antiepileptic drug Lyrica.

- In 2009, Pfizer paid $750 million to settle 35,000 claims that its drug, Rezulin, was responsible for 63 deaths and dozens of liver failures. Rezulin's withdrawal from the U.S. market on March 21, 2000, followed negotiations between the drug's manufacturer and the FDA.

Senior FDA officials had long stood behind the drug despite a mounting death toll and Rezulin's absence of proven life-saving benefits. The position of the FDA officials stood in contrast to their counterparts in Britain, where Rezulin was removed effectively on Dec. 1, 1997.

- In 2010, Pfizer was ordered to pay \$142.1 million in damages for violating federal anti-racketeering law by its fraudulent sale and marketing of Neurontin for uses not approved by the FDA. The jury found that Pfizer's marketing of Neurontin violated both the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act and California's Unfair Competition Law.
- In 2010, the New York Times published an article entitled "Pfizer Gives Details on Payments to Doctors." Pfizer admitted that it paid about $20 million to 4,500 doctors and other medical professionals for consulting and speaking on its behalf in the last six months of 2009.

Pfizer also paid $15.3 million to 250 academic medical centers and other research groups for clinical trials in the same period. The disclosures were required by an agreement that the company signed to

Pfizer Gives Details on Payments to Doctors

By DUFF WILSON MARCH 31, 2010

T.ME/KANEKOATHEGREAT

Pfizer, the world's largest drug maker, said Wednesday that it paid about $20 million to 4,500 doctors and other medical professionals for consulting and speaking on its behalf in the last six months of 2009, its first public accounting of payments to the people who decide which drugs to recommend.

Pfizer also paid $15.3 million to 250 academic medical centers and other research groups for clinical trials in the same period.

While other pharmaceutical companies have disclosed payments to doctors, Pfizer is the first to disclose payments for the clinical trials. The disclosure does not include payments outside the United States.

A spokeswoman for Pfizer, Kristen E. Neese, said most of the disclosures were required by an integrity agreement that the company signed in August to settle a federal investigation into the illegal promotion of drugs for off-label uses.

- In 2010, Blue Cross Blue Shield filed a lawsuit against Pfizer, accusing the pharmaceutical giant of illegally bribing 5,000 doctors with lavish Caribbean vacations, golf games, massages and other recreational activities to convince doctors to use Bextra for off-label use.
- In 2010, leaked cables between Pfizer and U.S. officials in Nigeria showed that Pfizer had hired investigators to unearth evidence of corruption against the Nigerian attorney general to blackmail him to drop legal action over the controversial 1996 Trovan trial involving children with meningitis.

In 2009, Pfizer agreed to pay $75 million to the families harmed during the 1996 drug trial. Still, the cables suggest that the US drug giant was looking for blackmail to get the Nigerian attorney general to drop the $6 billion federal suit against Pfizer.

The leaks showed that Pfizer's investigators were passing 'damaging' information to the local media and threatening the attorney general that much more damaging information would come out if he did not drop the suit. The $6 billion lawsuit was dropped in 2009.

- In 2012, the Securities and Exchange Commission charged Pfizer Inc. with violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act when its subsidiaries bribed doctors and other health care professionals employed by foreign governments in Bulgaria, China, Croatia, Czech Republic, Italy, Kazakhstan, Russia and Serbia to win business.

According to the Securities and Exchange Commission, employees of Pfizer's subsidiaries authorized and made cash payments and provided other incentives to bribe government doctors to utilize Pfizer products.

- In 2012, Pfizer paid $1.2 billion to settle claims by nearly 10,000 women that its hormone replacement therapy drug, Prempro, caused breast cancer. The Prempro settlements came after six years of trials.

Several plaintiffs were awarded tens of millions of dollars, including punitive damages for the drug maker's actions in withholding information about the risk of breast cancer from Prempro.

- In 2013, Pfizer agreed to pay $55 million to settle criminal charges of failing to warn patients and doctors about the risks of kidney disease, kidney injury, kidney failure and acute interstitial nephritis caused by its proton pump inhibitor, Protonix.

- In 2013, Pfizer set aside $288 million to settle claims by 2,700 people that its drug, Chantix, caused suicidal thoughts and severe psychological disorders. The FDA determined that Chantix is probably associated with a higher risk of a heart attack.
- In 2014, Pfizer paid $35 million to settle a lawsuit accusing its subsidiary of promoting the kidney transplant drug Rapamune for unapproved uses, including bribing doctors to prescribe it to patients.

According to New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman, who led the probe, Wyeth got doctors to push the drug for unapproved uses, relying on “misleading presentations of data.”

- In 2016, Pfizer was fined a record £84.2 million for overcharging the National Health Service for its anti-epilepsy drug, Phenytoin, by 2,600% (from £2.83 to £67.50 a capsule), increasing the cost to U.K. taxpayers from £2 million in 2012 to about £50 million in 2013.

The above is only a partial list of the fraud, corruption and criminality of Pfizer. There are other examples of Pfizer unethically testing pharmaceutical products in the world's poorest nations and participating in other criminal actions.

Whistleblowers expose Pfizer COVID vaccine trials

While Pfizer's CEO believes that it is criminal to question the integrity of his pharmaceutical company, multiple whistleblowers have already come forward, exposing the lack of integrity of Pfizer's COVID-19 vaccine trials.

Leading medical journal The BMJ published a report exposing faked data, blind trial failures, poorly trained vaccinators and a slow follow-up on adverse reactions in the phase-three trial of Pfizer's gene therapy shots.

When the whistleblower reported her concerns to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), she was fired later the same day because she was “not a good fit.” The FDA never inspected the clinical trial site of the whistleblower complaint.

Another whistleblower named Maddie de Garay volunteered for the Pfizer trial for 12 to 15-year-olds. 24 hours after her second dose, she was in an emergency room.

She is now in a wheelchair, requires a feeding tube through her nose and is still suffering 9 months later. Maddie was 1 of 1,131 children in Pfizer's clinical trial for children aged 12-15.

Pfizer officially recorded Maddie's adverse event as “abdominal pain” when reporting clinical trial results to the FDA. If we know Maddie's devastating, life-altering injury is recorded as “abdominal pain” in the clinical trials: what other serious adverse events have been hidden by Pfizer and ignored by the FDA?

Pfizer's Shocking Cover Up of Maddie De Garay

Attorney Aaron Siri and a group of more than 30 scientists, medical professionals and journalists asked the FDA for “all data and information for the Pfizer vaccine,” including safety and effectiveness data, adverse reaction reports and a list of active and inactive ingredients.

The FDA managed to consider all 329,000 pages of data and grant emergency approval of the Pfizer vaccine within just 108 days but is now asking for 75 years to fully release that information to the public.

Siri wrote on his Substack:

"So, let's get this straight. The federal government shields Pfizer from liability. Gives it billions of dollars. Makes Americans take its product. But won't let you see the data supporting its product's safety and efficacy. Who does the government work for?"

The Pharmaceutical Regulatory Revolving Door

In a December 2021 interview, World Bank President, David Malpass, said that Pfizer will not give mRNA shots to countries where they face legal liabilities for side effects.

Malpass shared:

"Pfizer has been hesitant to go into some of the countries because of the liability problems, they don't have a liability shield."

This clearly shows that Pfizer is not operating from some moral high road for the betterment of society. This is about profit, and the people of the world have every right to question the integrity of Pfizer based on its criminal history and current actions.

As I have written in previous articles, this is still a pandemic of the untreated because captured regulatory agencies refuse to provide early treatment protocols featuring cheap and effective off-patent medications.

How much of this refusal to treat patients is due to Big Pharma's leverage over captured regulatory agencies?

And, by all accounts, the COVID-19 mRNA gene therapy shots are failing to stop the spread worldwide. Still, Pfizer expected to bring in \$33.5 billion in vaccine revenue in 2021 and expects even more profits in 2022 if it can continue to convince the world that its pharmaceutical products are the savior of humanity.

World Bank President David Malpass said before the above quote that "The problem (for Pfizer) is indemnification."

indemnify: transitive verb: To protect against damage, loss, or injury; insure. To make compensation to for damage, loss, or injury suffered. To save harmless; to secure against loss or damage; to insure.

The highly-secretive contract agreements made between Pfizer Corporation and leaders of nations who purchase Pfizer's mRNA injections, - the contract agreements which effectively remain secret even after judges order their release for the public's inspection, when "the powers that be" blacken out/classify large portions of said contracts - must become available for citizens in each nation to study in their fully-transparent, unredacted, original form..

Secret and/or "classified" contract terms have absolutely nothing to do with public health..

I lost my husband to Remdesivir in 2021. I had no idea of the history of this drug involving the deaths of so many people from its use, over a period of years. And they had the nerve to pull it off the shelf again and kill tens of thousands more, without even a blink. No one wants to take on these lawsuits and it's still the protocol in hospitals across our country. Sick!!!! I have quite a story to tell.

Neurontin was being prescribed for nerve pain 20 years ago, then they moved on to Lyrica because it was more expensive, and although this muck has been proven not to work for nerve pain, it's still being prescribed for it. Doctors just do as the drugs reps with their freebees tell them, they don't even look at research.

Once you're on it you can't get off, (I know from experience in my family) and the side effects are horrible, I took it for about 3 days, and even if it did work I would rather have the pain than the 'side effects'.

Pfizer was corrupt long before the 1990s.

Look into the FDA oral histories of those working at the FDA around the time of Thalidomide. They all mention the FDA case against Big Pharma had something to do with the Bay of P i g s ransom.

Big Pharma donated $53 million in medicine and medical supplies to pay Castro's ransom for the captured invaders-- a CIA operation.

In return, the US Government, the AG-- Robert Kennedy threw the Thalidomide case under the rug and announced only one child in America was damaged by Thalidomide and that lie continued.

How do you know that's a lie? Look at the Children's prosthetic industry which took off at that time because children were born without limbs. Those responsible accountable and establish safeguards to prevent future harm. We fight corruption, mass surveillance and censorship that put profits before people as well as advocate for worldwide rights to health freedom and bodily autonomy.

Millions of Thalidomide tablets were distributed around the country in 20,000 doctors to give out as samples as an aid for morning sickness as everyone was so sure Thalidomide would be approved because all of Europe and Australia were taking it-- then the horror started and its connection to that drug.
