

WHO (finally) admits PCR test is potentially flawed

Second PCR memo in two months casts even more doubt on the “gold standard” of Covid diagnosis

The World Health Organisation has released a memorandum which potentially completely undermines all the “pandemic” case numbers from all over the world.

On the 13th of January, they put out this memo, stating that a single positive PCR test should not be used for diagnosing Sars-Cov-2 infection.

To quote them directly:

“Where test results do not correspond with the clinical presentation, a new specimen should be taken and retested using the same or different NAT technology.

Translation: If you get a positive test for someone with no symptoms, re-test them. Or rather: any PCR positive test is potentially a false positive.

It goes on to say:

“ Most PCR assays are indicated as an aid for diagnosis, therefore, health care providers must consider any result in combination with timing of sampling, specimen type, assay specifics, clinical observations, patient history, confirmed status of any contacts, and epidemiological information.

Note it says “an aid for diagnosis” and NOT “a diagnostic test”.

In careful bureaucratic language, they are essentially admitting that PCR tests were not meant to be used diagnostically, and cannot be relied upon to do so accurately. Just as Dr Kary Mullis, the inventor of the PCR test, said himself many times.

Understand this. The PCR test is virtually the ENTIRE foundation of the Covid narrative. Without it you have nothing but healthy people and the normal winter flulike illnesses. Every ‘case’ you read about is only a case because of a PCR test.

We and others have been saying since at least June that the PCR test is scientifically meaningless. And now, by degrees the WHO is admitting it too.

And if the PCR test is meaningless. So is the “pandemic”. A lie built in the deliberate misuse of a tool not fit for purpose.

Wow. In my hospital, back in March nobody looked at the strength of the positive pcr finding. Positive was positive. And when patients were pcr negative, they CT scanned these patients (without contrast, as they wanted to look at lung tissue) (a radiologist needs contrast to look at arteries, to see if someone has pulmonary embolism). And if then still negative they were clinically diagnosed as having Covid. I am sure that all hospitals in NL followed the same strategy, and I am also sure that elsewhere the same strategy was followed. It's all over pubmed that THIS was the science that should be followed for diagnosing Covid during 'the first wave,

And then doctors found out, weeks later, that most of these patients did not recover from air support, because over 50% had pulmonary embolism (which needs anticoagulant treatment and is a potentially fatal disease when left untreated: blocking lungarteries by clots=pulmonary embolism which leads to damaged/ dead lung tissue after which a patient dies from hypoxia).

Just google 'covid pulmonary embolism' and you see how medical negligence works. If you have a strong stomach, then also read the guidelines on Covid and pulmonary embolism. There you can read about the endless stupidity of doctors (written by themselves) who think they found a 'new disease' that causes pulmonary embolism in such a high rate as never seen in any other disease.

Or, or, or, maybe they missed a diagnosis at admission? – The heresy!

You haven't seen the faces of all these doctors, when I told them that they missed a diagnosis. But I have. I received irritation in return. How could I think that doctors are so stupid? Well, because they are maybe?

I tell you what you need to do to discover some truth here. And that is one, just one surviving Covid patient who was admitted to hospital (or relatives of the diseased patient) who asks (maybe through his lawyer) if the doctors at admission did or did not rule out pulmonary embolism. The symptoms (shortness of breath, high temp, dry cough) were there. The risk factors are there (male sex, older age, obesity). And the blood (high d-dimer) is usually there (as this is often routinely taken at time of admission). Their standard protocols say that people with symptoms of pulmonary embolism and high d-dimer should receive a CT scan with contrast to rule out pulmonary. If they did not do that, then you have a case of negligence which is judged in NL according to criminal law, civil law, and disciplinary law. It's considered as the worst offense in medicine. For a reason!

This WHO report is also A very sad read.

Everything that is in it is known in medicine for ages! I for one know this, because I teach it to medical students!

Yes, in the absence of a gold standard you know nothing about the validity of the test

Yes, the positive predictive value and number of false positives is directly related to the prevalence of the disease

Yes, asymptomatic cases highly suggest an error in the diagnosis

Yes, a diagnosis should always be made after several signs and symptoms and lab findings point into one direction and ALL the alternatives should be ruled out when the final diagnosis was made.

And doctors didn't do that. You know why?

Because the news papers told them that there was this new and deadly disease that was similar to the plague.

The stupidity!

Willem, you put your finger on it, and it's a bigger problem than medicine.

Stupidity is rampant in society and no profession (or even qualification) is immune. We have built a system that offers a path to security without the need for broad competence; a way to wealth with as little accountability as possible for one's actions. It is the opposite of a world in which a person would live or die by their skills.

In fact, professions exist to maximise the distance between action and reward. They put protection of their peers (and their institution) before the public good. Nepotism and corruption, lobbying and limited liability does the rest.

It has reached the point where we can all say we have seen a competent person victimized as a threat to the group. HR talks without irony of the "war ON talent."

Specialisation and the cult of the profession gives us a breed of people who are able climb the ladder out of public view; and no-one outside the profession is willing or able to criticise them.

Interesting. I received primary and some secondary education in the Second World, and my first impression when I started going to school in Canada was how incredibly poorly educated everyone was in the sense of having a broad base knowledge. They were more creative in the infantile sense, and some had advanced knowledge/skills in a particular field of study which they were pursuing, but overall, it was tragic.

I couldn't agree more. It's very easy to do well within the system and to pass for a genius, already was the case before, now the standards are so low it's unbelievable. A 12 year old showed me his school notebook: absolute rubbish. The maths part was more than rubbish, in fact one part he showed me as he couldn't do the exercise was literally nonsense.

Before you could muster the technique of exams and get good results, at least it had some logic in it. Now, I think I'd have failed, dropped out at a young age.

His parents have been asking me advice as they want him to study maths in Cambridge. I had to explain that for us, we got the tail end of the truly exemplary thinkers, scientists. Even if many were retired, they were still around, and gave talks. But now they're going to get all those that have compromised for status. All the best of my generation I have had the privilege to meet have had to leave the system for one reason or another.

In short I said I could not recommend Cambridge anymore if their son was truly interested in maths and if they wanted him to become an honest scientist, not one steeped in dogma and motivated by status, rewards... They keep asking me where? I have no idea what to suggest frankly, especially with the current events and the reaction of academics.

The better you do, the more they try to make you compromise from early on. First they make you feel as though you are part of a special breed. Anyhow if you refuse the compromises, you have to get out. You cant stay and not compromise. This is why for example, you will notice that those who speak out do so after retirement, after having spent a lifetime compromising. Its too late then.

Grigori Perelman's (one of the truly outstanding mathematicians of the late 20th cent. who solved Poincaré's conjecture) comments apply beyond mathematics: "Of course, there are many mathematicians who are more or less honest. But almost all of them are conformists. They are more or less honest, but they tolerate those who are not honest."

Rewards are a method to orient academic work towards what is needed to keep the system going in the direction wanted. Not just rewards, also funding. In particular, the temptation of honours is ever present since science became a tool for power. Faraday's opinion that they are "degrading" holds little sway. Perelman, who refused the most prestigious prizes and financial awards, stands as a rare representative of a rapidly disappearing breed, for whom: "if the proof [in mathematics] is correct, no other recognition is needed".

Indeed, the subservience of research to the economic ideal is especially maintained by the culture of prizes. It was initiated by a forefront industrialist of the nascent military-industrial complex, Alfred Nobel, precisely when monitoring research became essential. It contributes to bring to the fore individuals and subjects dedicated to this ideal, while the strong subjectiveness underlying decisions is obscured since the new creed science has been distorted into professes an objectivity devoid of values.

Well Willem as you surely know, most medical doctors will NEVER admit they made a serious mistake, both because of the legal repercussions and also their ego would not allow it. I've myself been at the receiving end of a medical malpractice cover-up, it's a sickening thing to behold as it unfolds. Yet, I got the distinct feeling that it was in a way "business as usual" and that they had done this before. Weird huh?

Isn't that the truth, my mother has Munchausen's by Proxy and convinced dozens of doctors I kept losing weight, dropping from fatigue all my childhood because I had coeliac disease.

They all believed her without actually anyone ever diagnosing any such thing so she kept me like a walking skeleton till I escaped her rotten clutches at 19, I almost overnight got better. In my 30;s though, still unaware I had never been diagnosed except by her lunatic need to control, I got worse and worse till I was in so much agony I couldn't function. Turns out I had Crohn's disease all along, now after more doctors bickered for 18 months whether to cut out the clogged bits I am functionally disabled, They checked for coeliac disease, nothing, nada, zip. I sacked all those doctors once I got the right drugs to keep me going and with self care have gained 29 years past the date they predicted my death. I have watched three incredible grand daughters grow up, the births of 4 great grand kids, still disabled and sick, but still living.

If I had kept listening to doctors I would have been long gone.

I had a minor surgery back in Dec and was forced to take a PCR test the day prior or I couldn't have the surgery. Luckily showed negative even though I am lackadaisical about wearing masks.

Had another outpatient surgery scheduled for mid Jan (which I decided to cancel the evening before). Was forced to get a PCR test yet again on the day prior to surgery. Tried arguing with the required pre-anesthesia interview nurse about how the PCR test shouldn't be used for diagnosis in healthy people (per the USA CDC) I provided them the exact document.

My "concern" was escalated and then ignored as these things usually are by the hospital-industrial complex. I wouldn't be surprised if Stanford turned out to own the PCR test company they use. Sheese.

Nothing matters anymore. The world has sunk to a state of mass hysteria, reason has disappeared. Get a load of this.

A bunch of apparatchiks and politicians have been caught partying in a provincial town, breaking just about all the covidian rules purported to "protect people from a deadly disease". Party leaders are "enraged", demanding that heads roll for this (they're rolling already).

People are whining about rules for three not for me, preaching water drinking wine, enraged that the pricks don't follow the rules. WHAT? What kind of dumbfuckery is that? Shouldn't it be obvious that if the very people who impose the rules against the "deadly" disease don't give a shit about the "deadly" disease, then there is no "deadly" disease?

Suicidal, self-imposed slavery.

Yes, they want us to know what they're doing to (not for) us, and just who the victims are/will be.

>Suicidal, self-imposed slavery.

No- as I said above, the hoi polloi are living in fear, and are following the impossible-to-follow-by-design "rules" in hopes of being "allowed" to again live normally. That's unlikely, IMO.

Please don't claim that this is "what the people want".. that's bullsh!t, as you certainly know.

It would probably be better if you took less patronizing a tone. Also, I don't respond well to imperatives. Sometimes I tell people to fuck off.

I don't know what people want or what they don't want. In life, whatever one wants, one has to work for, and quite often, whatever one doesn't want, one has to oppose or fight against.

If wearing mask is not mandatory, but a person is wearing it, it's self-imposed. The wearer probably wouldn't were it not for all the humbug, but they're obviously more comfortable in the role of a slave than in the role of a freedom fighter.

How to make things better?

Good question. Probably impossible. Despite all the lies and manipulations, health totalitarianism is here to stay. It's an integral part of establishments and too many people have swallowed it. There are some legal efforts and there are protests, but I doubt that they'll stop it. COVID-19 will become irrelevant as it paves the way to the surveillance, totalitarianism, and the rest of the crap that were the goal in the first place, and there isn't much anybody can do about it. This is not a fight against this particular virus scam. It's a fight against at least decades of a development/lifestyle that most people are quite comfortable with (oblivious to the fact that it's ultimately detrimental to them).

Previously, a hardline health minister was caught dining in a restaurant with some other politician assholes. Broke all the rules. There was also a footage from some press conference where a bunch of hospital directors were standing solemnly ("death, death, death!!!") with masks on behind the health minister before the shooting took place – none had a mask on, all joking, big fun ... ha ha ha ... There are examples of this all over the world, including the fuckhead Neil Ferguson who was shagging his girlfriend. I'm sure that you can dig up something wherever you are.

And idiots are whining that the privileged are "not complying with the rules" and demanding that they do instead of realizing that the rules are bullshit and demanding that they be scrapped.

The psychopathic owners, I mean, wise rulers of the company for which I work decided to call the new way of doing things in their establishments the 'Covid Regime'. A suitably idiotic name. These people are wealthy imbeciles.

One of my colleagues had tested positive. And another one who'd worked with her had tested positive, too. The bods at environmental health then got involved and put the frighteners on the company, which reacted with its 'Regime' nonsense. This is despite the fact that the second colleague could've 'caught' 'Covid' at any point during the several days in between working with the first colleague and testing positive. A nonsense.

We're now required to wear an apron, gloves and a face mask at all times. About an hour into the 'Regime', it had already fallen apart. All four of us on duty were still wearing aprons (in case there was a spot-check by the company or an outside agency), but the gloves were nowhere to be seen, and the masks were either half-on or not on at all.

My so-called boss came in (the lazy bastard's been 'working' from home). He saw that I didn't have a mask or gloves on, but he said nothing about it. So much for the 'Regime'. It seems that this cowardly little yes-man doesn't actually give a toss about it (and neither do the company; they're just covering their own arses, as always).

It has greatly amused me to find that the thermometer we're supposed to use on everyone every two hours is of the 'gun' variety; it's held up to the temple in order to take a reading. A gun pointed at our heads! It'd be hard to find a more apt metaphor for the situation in which we find ourselves.

One advantage of working for a company with such low standards is that no one's going to take the 'Regime' seriously over the four weeks during which it'll be in place.

Regime, FFS. Twats.

The gullible masses are like a small child, with the state as his parents. The child is helpless, and looks to the parents for protection and guidance (as well as approval). He's got implicit faith in them.

Sometimes, the parents leave the child in front of the TV. He watches fanciful, fantastic programmes such as Teletubbies (also known as 'the news'). The child believes what he sees on the screen. Those characters are real to him. He imitates them, wants to be like them. He trusts them, just as he trusts his parents. He doesn't know any different, and why would he? He's just a little boy!

And that's the gullible masses; a small child watching a made-up world on the TV, and believing that it's all real.

Exactly. They can't even conceive of the fact that 'their' government doesn't give a toss about them, let alone the fact that they actively wish to harm them.

The way they look up to the government is fucking pathetic.

Yes, governments of all shades and political tendencies have proven to us time and time again that, as a rule with very few exceptions, their action is detrimental to the general interest of the population, so much so that the question of the necessity of a government and the process of elections as we know them today ought to be examined.

Someone said that electoral processes are the definition itself of antipolitics because they consist in actively interesting the public to make choices in policy making during a few days, once every four years or so, while making the same public irrelevant and desinterested the rest of the time.

Unfortunately, we shine by our short memory, otherwise we would always "judge by past performance", as the movie line goes.

Orwell's "1984" was not really meant to be a prophetic novel, but he was really prescient in his description of the "Telescreen".

Of course, television was not an unknown technology when he wrote the book – there had been a limited TV service in the UK before the war, and it restarted in June 1946. But it was still in its infancy, and far from being the mass media that it is today.

But Orwell knew the value of radio propaganda – after all, he'd worked for the BBC during the war, and knew full well that he was taking part in a propaganda war.

So he must have been fully aware of how much more powerful a TV version of the same thing would be. He could not have known whether technology would really develop to become the powerful surveillance tool that it was in "1984", and that it has done in reality, but I suppose he guessed that it might, and of course, he guessed right.

They know they can get fearful people to do all manner of insane things! And the masses wouldn't know critical thinking if it came up to them and slapped them in the face with a wet kipper.

As for the split infinitive, well, I think it's sometimes necessary to use them. Not doing so can render a sentence a little bit ugly, in my opinion.

Keep in mind that this is typical human behavior. Fear makes people stupid.

Myself as an example when I was very ill years ago, all "wisdom" life experience, you know better, education went flying out with the bath water.

Fear, the instinct for survival took over. It was humbling and a time of great disillusionment, no less true for what is happening with many societies.

If there is anything to learn from illness and death, is that no one is spared that lesson.

The feeling of utter helplessness and no longer being certain or in control, especially in our own bodies can be very traumatic.

This is being played out right before our very eyes, Thanatos!

As this docudrama continues to unfold we need to remember that the WHO is just another mask for Gates. Some of their number are happy to lie for cash, some aren't but have bills to pay. Either way it's just the script writers department.

I mentioned that the uselessness of the PCR tests had been admitted by them two days ago. They want new sheep to help design a new test. I think it's time to examine the real role of these rituals and paraphernalia. The magicians props.

The most valuable of our five senses is that of sight if we hope to navigate our way through life without being too confused or getting lost. The world today is far more busy place than ever and it's crammed with noise and chaos.

The ever – changing landscape and increasing tempo of life has a huge impact on us at an unconscious level. Nothing stays still. Semiotics has evolved at the same pace that the world has and it's in semiotics we find that hidden universal language.

The obvious usefulness and power of semiotic language is seen things like traffic lights and road signs for obvious reasons.

The better we become at reading such signs the easier it is to navigate our world.

The language isn't all about the visual however . Consider the sirens of police vehicles and ambulances or fire alarms. They may differ slightly, but the clues from the environmental context aid us in a fast interpretation.

Psychology (particularly Social Psychology) and advertising have been able to exploit the power of semiotics for profit or gain. They enjoy success individually or in tandem. And they can be invaluable in marketing and advertising. Both arenas are of great financial interest in various areas of commerce. The consumer population are sitting ducks.

The consensus of the psychologists is that there are two systems; system 1 (emotional) and system 2 (rational). It also holds that 1 holds sway over 2 and advertisers exploit that ruthlessly. In sales, the last thing the salesmen needs is a customer analysing and questioning. Whereas, if you can disengage that system, you can massage their feeling one instead. This will make them far more malleable and suggestible. It's a little touch of NLP mixed with a little stage hypnosis.

We fool ourselves that, because we made a conscious decision before buying an item, idea or ideology, that our rational(2) brain completed that task alone. But it's rarely true. Our emotional brain calls the shots; our emotional brain is the seat of our beliefs; our feelings.

These beliefs -and emotions- have worked on the subconscious mind through the world around us; what we witness, what we are fed through our eyes and minds. The influence of a storm of semiotics shapes our mindset.

Consider the 16 -45 demographic. Do they really queue for hours for the latest upgrade or new mobile(cell) phone based on their rational consideration of the phone's technical capabilities alone ? Or are they aware of being 'the first' to get into the trend and enjoy the bragging rights of the status that is conferred ? How rational was that decision making process ?

They saw the brand; TV, magazines; the internet. They bought into the hype and the associated popularity. They- and millions of others did the exact same thing. Think about that. Millions. Then think about people like Gates (Microsoft / Windows) Bezos (Amazon) Jobs(Apple). Tribal icons.

This is why those oligarchs train sheep. Those sheep buy them mansions; those sheep buy their bullshit. Those sheep buy their pitch. Those sheep do their bidding. The 'black sheep' that flee the herd and try to persuade the others to follow are silenced or made to disappear. They're bad for business in more ways than one.

The black sheep have no bells and whistles to make them 'feel'; they only have information that they think the sheep need. Unfortunately, 'feelers' are only concerned with what they want, not what they might need.

And so to propaganda.

The Covid 19 event has been a dream for the professional semioticists. From day one we were confronted by semiotics. The hypnosis began.

The politicians with their ' accident scene' tape stuck on the front of their podiums; the stage managed monotone speaking of them and the outside broadcasters; the language of WW2 ('our heroes', 'we're in a war'; 'we're under attack', 'on the front line', 'the fallen'). The message was : 'we're at war so we must band together against a common foe just like our grandparents did'.

So the masses were to 'feel' two things; complete fear and complete solidarity as we remained glued to each other ('together') by that fear. And, of course, 'the new normal' (repeat, repeat, repeat). We had the aural semiotics to encode and the images of war. Soon would come the victim imagery to remind us all why we're supposed to play along. We'd stepped into the movie.

(Nobody ever questioned the leaders on day one why findings of behavioural psychologists were crucial before any decisions about a pandemic could be made- ever wondered why?)

The fear was set fast early. It was impossible to escape covid updates from anywhere that had a screen. We were constantly bombarded by images of the 'fallen' as they were wheeled here and there with masked faces and frightened eyes; we saw outside reporters walking through empty schools with the lights switched off for effect as they spoke like death himself had been their just before the cameras arrived. Then the real show began.

It began with hand washing instructions (apparently we needed to master this complex skill). Then the 'how to wear a mask' pictures, along with the outlandish rationale behind it. Eventually, millions wore them not so much out of fear, but as badges of honour. The mask was a declaration of how much you care for the environment and fellow sheep. They eventually made them fashion items; a little 'covid ensemble' All the flock sharing one brain. Once that happens you only have to make one sale to one sheep; the rest will ask for it too.

Test it now. Imagine seeing a poster every 20 yards outside. A picture of a mask; a pair of gloves; a set of PCR testing equipment; hand sanitiser. Each one says 'covid'; 'pandemic still here'. It's like you took your TV out with you. You are not allowed to forget. Now imagine the streets much busier and not a mask in sight; day after day for a week. No pictures; no posters. Nothing saying 'covid' or 'pandemic'. It vanishes from your mind and you have your life back. That would horrify the handlers.

It doesn't matter if the futility of PCR tests, mask wearing and hand washing are exposed. Those behind the ideas knew that. But the psychologists, the marketers and the salesmen needed to sell the whole population the same lie. It was a victory for semiotic linguistics, psychology and marketing. A loss for the dumbed down.

That's how the emotional holds power over the rational; that's why you will never get an argument or sensible discussion with the conformists on the right level. You approach these people who are dominated by their emotional(fear) brain but you use your rational (analytical) brain. You are on buses moving in opposite lanes and there's is moving fast to get past you.

When you see a poster of a masked face now what do you think about. You think of the narrative of the biological war the authors created ; the horrors of the rising death toll and illness; the hysteria over vaccines that even the manufacturers don't believe in. You get angry; you remember the semiotics of the dancing nurses; the queues outside shops of socially distancing conformists. You hear the semiotic mantras of 'in it together' and 'being apart keeps us together' and know the sheep are loving it as it soothes their emotional brain and doesn't demand they try to have a thought.

Nice quick example :

Apple 1984 Super Bowl Commercial Introducing ...

Precisely. Using rational arguments on the fear-driven conformists is like speaking English to a person who doesn't understand the language. It doesn't matter how loud you speak, the words are not going to get through to them.

Like i often say, as others do too, it's hard getting through to, and being heard by, the sheeple who sleep. This is because , as hypnotists and hypnotherapists will tell you, putting the rational to sleep is the most important stage of preparing the subject for programming. It's like removing the security guards at the gate. You can relax them into a deep state of vulnerability, or you can grind them down and exhaust them into one. The guards can sometimes fall asleep without being 'put under'. Then you have access to the inner workings of target like a burglar.

Hi Jura, this is my submission to the WHO response for an improved diagnostic test to the current rt-PCR fiasco. Anyone have the WHO e-address where to send submissions? I suspect that the real Will's patent (not the somewhat less ancient who Hancock shed crocodile tears over) has expired, so maybe I could get royalties and become as rich as Robert Gallo for his HIV test of similar superlative value..

First Witch: Round about the cauldron go;

In the poison'd entrails throw.

Toad, that under cold stone

Days and nights has thirty-one

Swelter'd venom sleeping got,

Boil thou first i' the charmed pot.

All Double, double toil and trouble;

Fire burn, and cauldron bubble.

Second Witch: Fillet of a fenny snake,

In the cauldron boil and bake;

Eye of newt and toe of frog,

Wool of bat and tongue of dog,

Adder's fork and blind-worm's sting,

Lizard's leg and owlet's wing,

For a charm of powerful trouble,

Like a hell-broth boil and bubble.

All: Double, double toil and trouble;

Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

Third Witch. Scale of dragon, tooth of wolf,

Witches' mummy, maw and gulf

Of the ravin'd salt-sea shark,

Root of hemlock digg'd i' the dark,

Liver of blaspheming Jew,

Gall of goat, and slips of yew

Silver'd in the moon's eclipse,

Nose of Turk and Tartar's lips,

Finger of birth-strangled babe

Ditch-deliver'd by a drab,

Make the gruel thick and slab:

Add thereto a tiger's chaudron,

For the ingredients of our cauldron.

All: Double, double toil and trouble;

Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

Second Witch: Cool it with a baboon's blood,
Then the charm is firm and good.

If the WHO will not accept my submission as a diagnostic test, then I think I will apply to the CIA's venture capital division, In-Q-Tel, to use it as a recipe for a cv-1984 vaccine, despite the fact that Pfizer and Moderna are using many of the same ingredients.

Of course. But the grasp of human behaviour that Psychology has had for over 100 years has managed to create a few billion dumbed down easy-to-mug sheep; it has created a simple tactic for herding them into pens big enough to contain a few million each online; it's created propaganda subtle enough win war, kill millions, and escape recrimination; It's created a dependant, addicted population who live for the next big thing to buy to feel complete for a month;

It's also created a generation that can witness the slaughter of a president, the dropping of the twin towers and the murder of other leaders and never connect the dots or question the motives of those who may have profited by them happening .

It created two forms of conditioning- classical and operant– that can be used to teach mice to pull levers and pigeons to to have nervous breakdowns. The principles work on the human psyche just as effectively.

When they identify the rational and the emotional components of our psyche and demonstrate their power to effect or disengage either, we watch to see the proof. If we see it we should be vigilante and remain alert. They play percentages. A large majority is what they seek. Nobody really listens to minorities. The logic being taught to the gullibles is that the majority is always right- that's why they hold the power. The gullible like that.

Bang... nail, hammer, head, Jura. There's obviously a raging pandemic and a million people are dead here in Melbourne, coz I've been out of my Flat 25 minutes, and everyone on the bus, on the train I'm on now, and in the vicinity of the train station are all wearing facemasks. Everyone.

And I'm pretty certain there's been zero 'cases' here in 2 weeks now.

Just spotted that sign here also: 'Being Apart Keeps Us Together'. Goebbels would be proud.

You're also right, it wouldn't matter now if they came out and said the PCR tests were completely flawed, or facemasks were ineffective. The majority of people would just continue adhering to the ritual of the 'new normal'.

How long does it take for a habit to become 'normalised'? Thanks...

unfortunately it's like asking how susceptible someone is to hypnotism. Some will go under and deep quick, some a little longer and some not at all. The numbers used to be about 25% were easy, 25% were difficult- the rest 50% were grazing in between and up for grabs. Unfortunately, we value rationality and critical thinking at the end that hold those who won't be put under. So we have nothing to coax the grazers with.

The controllers know exactly how to tempt them in. Look at Facebook, Farmville, Candycrush.. Look at the speed they can facetime and zoom. They are too distracted to question the Hell heading toward their children.

Evil flourishes when good men stand around and do nothing. as the saying goes. At least we tried. Now it's time to turn our attention to trying to stop the enemy, not wake up the dead.

Story to share with you Judith. My local supermarket has a big 6.3 ft security guard stationed at the entrance, so as I said, I cave in and put on a facemask to get past him. Getting so fed up with this rubbish, so today sat on 4 different trains and 2 buses (going to and home from work) and didn't wear a facemask once, even tho they're mandatory on public transport here.

They're also mandatory inside large shopping centres and inside supermarkets. So on the way home, went to a large shopping centre I've been to heaps before even tho its in a different suburb.

Walked around inside with no facemask on. Then went to the Woolies supermarket inside. Security Guard was at the entrance as usual, albeit he was a short Indian guy.

I took a deep breath, and just walked into the supermarket straight past him. Not a word. I even browsed the bread rolls about 20 feet from him. Nothing. No 'please put on a mask'. Nothing. Walked round the supermarket, walked past at least 3 staff members. None of them said boo.

Got my dinner and went to the self serve checkout, another staff member there. She greeted me and said "hello sir, cash or card"? Not a word about not wearing a facemask. I walked out feeling quite proud of myself. I suspect no one said anything because they're too cowardly too. I get glares on the trains, but they never say anything. Sorry, a long story...

I've had similar experiences, Gezzah. Some stores – nothing. Other places “did you forget your mask”?

There is one national food store (initials TJ) that is uber mandates. Staff person at the door, hand-sanitizer in hand – so nice to be concierged – making sure you are germ free. I don't shop there as a rule so it doesn't effect me.

Did it ever occur to you that you would be having this type of discourse about your daily life at this stage of the game?

I agree (see my reply to Gezzah).

That was a very dark time- Jonestown. It had the hallmarks of a CIA psyop and MK work. Many were described as 'robotic' and some appeared to be in a post-hypnotic trance. I watched a documentary on that about 20 years ago. The man doing it was treated with suspicion and 'an outsider'. Jones, the self-styled 'reverend' thought he was rock n roll.

Once the doc was over and the crew went to the airport, Jones finally snapped. From nowhere, a group of his 'faithful' shot the documentary maker dead before he could board the plane.

Some say many of the 'suicides' were murdered by needle administered by Jones' slaves. They died for their cause.

Interestingly it was the end of the decade. The end of the previous decade was marked by more CIA MK tampering and a drugs war culminating in Manson and his group and the death of Sharon Tate. Ironical that Tate's own father was part of the CIA who were trying to infiltrate the counter culture who were campaigning for peace.

I wouldn't know to be honest. I only read his articles now and then. I don't read many comments and the like. I've tried contributing to such things in the past and, more recently, to the occasional blog that appeared OK.

I was 'removed' from Fakebook about 8 or 9 years ago after expressing a few things i felt needed to be said. I have no time for twitter and most bloggers tend to only want to hear themselves echoed or they spit the dummy. I joined youtube a week before covid so, naturally, i was shadow banned from that. I found this place and thought I'd give it a go. The biases- for the most- are kept quiet.

The occasional skill and troll are par for the course and more like thrush than any real problem.

So it'll carry on for now until things change. Then I'll float back off into space on my waxed surfboard a la Dark Star looking for sanctuary.. 😊

Here we go:

<https://greatgameindia.com/no-talking-subway-france/>

You're no longer allowed to talk or phone on the French subway. They are slowly getting there: ban us totally from communicating. Talking is dangerous especially if its face to face: you can organize the fall of the system, goodness knows what you may be saying, what info you may be passing round...

Oh obviously the reason given is the existence of a virus so dangerous that if you take your mask off then you will become a mass murderer! I think it would be simpler to enforce real dog muzzles rather than a mask. The population is ready for it.

Did anyone even raise their eyebrows after it was reported even in the mainstream that microsoft had applied for a patent to "revive" the dead as chatbots, with the help AI?

<https://www.independent.co.uk/life-style/gadgets-and-tech/microsoft-chatbot-patent-dead-b1789979.html>

By now frankly the total lunatic psychopaths in power have transformed most into total lunatics ready to accept anything and everything. We're not a fit species to survive.

Yet there are still some, a tiny minority of humane, human beings, with some thinking ability, left... I say tiny minority, because even those with the ability to comprehend this time appear to be of an odd variety on the whole: they prefer hitting each other.

In dark periods, we, the minority, need to be even more humane than usual, we need to help one other, stretch a hand to a comrade falling, be more generous than we have ever been, take care of one other, organize ourselves collectively so we can do so more effectively, instead we are hitting each other and making those able-bodied among us fall.

So what we have are some strong egos, each with their followings, and unable to unite.

The first thing we have to do is forget about our little selves, of any possibility of using this dystopia to become famous in a more peaceful subsequent period. Our only goal should be to together force a return to a humane way of living. If we cant forget our egos, that peaceful period may never come.

Peaceful resistance to the whole event prompted them to enforce stricter lockdowns and punishments even though they daren't say that. They announced numbers and data that they invented to support their enforcing of it. Numbers and data they count as 'classified'. Or 'secret' to be more accurate, political language for 'lies'.

If we mobilise they'll enforce martial law. No matter which part of their story we resist. To resist tyranny and oppression is to demand fairness and truth from the politicians in power. That can only work in a democracy. And 'democracy' is the biggest river of snake oil that politicians ever created.

Trump was told to put the Insurrection Act front and centre a few weeks ago. Most of the global TV audience were tuned in hoping to see another Hollywood production of fake riots and posing military meatheads. That was the bait to get us glued. Then he announced it. Most people didn't know what the act was until then. They had little need to. It's over a century old. But they checked / researched and learned that it's martial law in all but name. it was dug up to cope with a form of public rebellion.

That's why they hooked us all in. To be primed for martial law in the near future. It was a backhanded warning..

Yep. That's where we're headed. With face-to-face contact prohibited, the Machine will be able to vaxecute people one by one, but the "necro-chatbot" versions of them will continue without missing a beat, so their family members will not even know the "meat version" of their loved ones have been snuffed out, up until the moment they, themselves, are vaxecuted. The only ones who will see the deaths are the bio-hazard disposal professionals, who will attribute each death to "covid" in their reports.

The extermination of the human race will be smooth. Quiet. Unnoticed.

This is why those of us who understand all this, if we're truly interested in getting rid of this dystopia, must now unite, forget our differences, forget our dislikes for each other, our personal ambitions.

I personally think the psychopaths will eat each other up at some stage, but that stage is still in the future. If we're unable to unite, then we must live under the radar until then and survive, if at all possible (i.e. refuse vaccines, have a means to live if they forbid us to work unless vaccinated).

Sincerely I dont see any other solution...

"return to a humane way of living"

I guess it would have to be determined exactly to what we're "returning". Was there some point in the past where things were optimal? Where "the way of living was humane"? When exactly was that?

Frankly, I don't think that we can go back. Instead, we have to formulate a better alternative that is viable and feasible, and can be embraced by people of the world.

On my part, I understand the point of uniting, but I do personally have a problem with that. I'm a lonely wolf and I like to keep the rest of the world at an arm's length. I'll join forces with others, but my view of the world is one of "individuals" as opposed to "society".

I've said it before, we're most likely facing a protracted dark period and the enemy knows exactly what they want and have a detailed plan. We have shit and we need to come with one too. We might be able to change a thing here and there, but a real change, if at all, will probably come only with future generations.

We've much argued about this haven't we?! All I mean is return to a pre-2020 measures. That is all we can at most agree upon, like in India, all people could agree upon was to throw out the British from the country. Now what type of society we want for later that's a different issue, and all we can hope is for a diversity of different models (you've read my book on democracy, so you'll find in the last chapter what I mean by that). But anyhow that's an open ended process, in which some of us may or may not participate. But we all have different ideas as to our ideal society.

As I have written here and elsewhere plenty of times as you know Jacques, all we can unite for is to get back to a pre-2020 measures world and ensure such dystopian measures are not re-enacted in at least our lifetime...

Ever seen No Country For Old Men?

When Chigurh takes the police car and pulls over that guy. He asks him to get out of the car. Despite Chigurh not being dressed like a cop, or looking like one whatsoever, and the guy getting no answer to what this is about, he gets out the car. He asks Chigurh what he's carrying (a cattle bolt gun), twice. No response. Chigurh asks him to hold still. The man obeys. Even as Chigurh is putting the nozzle to his forehead, he remains still. He has this inherent, pathetic trusting and confused look on his face, as he is being murdered.

Presumably the fact Chigurh was in a cop car was enough. Despite nothing else making sense.

Things at work have taken an interesting turn. I have refused the vax and it has "gotten out". Most just accept it but I'm experiencing a bit of tension with some.

Here's what I think is going to happen. The govt didn't dare make the vax mandatory because they knew that would lead to protests which would be difficult to ignore. And that would lead to ... actual discussion and, even worse, dispute over the entire virus issue. Too risky. So they allow people to choose, knowing full well that the vast majority – being media zombies – will just take the juice.

But the inevitable refusers will equally inevitably cause tension with the more criminally gullible vax demanders. No need for the govt to get directly involved. Just let the more stirred up elements of the public take over, go on witch hunts, vendettas, kangaroo courts etc. With that ever venal media ready to amplify the outrage. While the govt says, "Nothing to do with us!"

And the best bit is that when the inevitable lockdown prolongation comes round, the vax refusers can be blamed.

Win win for the new COVID culture.

But the point is, this is just ass covering. Biden is 'getting the US to rejoin the WHO', so the WHO will live on.

What is important is that the reputation of the WHO must be put where it belongs, namely a biddable and corruptible organisation that does not serve the world, rather serving its 1% masters.

Any reputable organisation would have immediately issued a 'gold standard set of requirements' for any PCR testing and delineated quite clearly the limits of its applicability.

1. Proper positive and negative controls.
2. Demonstration of specific amplification of SARS-CoV2 nucleic acids.
3. Correct number of cycles and annealing temperature.
4. Limited to determining whether or not virus is present.
5. Excluded from defining a clinical condition termed Covid19, it merely being one strand of contributory evidence.

Now I have never headed any medical organisation, but it doesn't take 5 minutes to draw that lot up.

If the WHO couldn't enforce such standards, then they must name those who wilfully resisted it.

Start that list with the name of William Gates III until proven otherwise.....

Data released by the Chinese about their handling of the outbreak included a section on testing protocols to confirm a diagnosis. They recommended two PCR tests taken with a separation of 2 weeks, and a chest x-ray. This was needed in hospitalised symptomatic cases. A single PCR test on asymptomatic individuals is clearly meaningless.

The UK seems to be operating on the bases that 1 in 3 asymptomatic individuals are capable of passing on the virus. Other research work from China looking a very large sample (10 million) in a densely crowded urban estimated the possible proportion of asymptomatic transmission at 0.03%. These were cases where asymptomatic transmission was possible through proximity and 'exposure' time, not actual instances which would almost certainly be much less likely.

Everything the UK does seems to be primarily aimed at exaggerating the effect of the disease. 'Errors' in interpretation / selection always point one way.

WHO also confirmed the China finding that asymptomatics were not infectious. According to its mythology (c. June 2020), health authorities can discharge an asymptomatic or recovered person after 2 weeks, regardless of positive test because the test is only flagging virus fragments, and such shedding may go on for months.

Re: the "Peacetime excess deaths highest since 1891" article in particular, I find it incomprehensible that anyone can see that headline and not realise they are being played. Even without going into the false manipulation of data, this article practically bellows the question "WHY?" Why bring up this topic at all? What positive contribution could such a headline possibly make?

It has been screamingly obvious to me even from the start all those months ago that the media is ferociously whipping up fear. And yet, going by conversations I've had, there are others who cannot see this at all! They seem to see the news as totally transparent. They are totally blind to the psychological manoeuvres. It wouldn't even occur to them that an item on the mainstream news is there to push them.

And that's just the headline. Going down the page, the first thing I see is a photo of a coffin with coffin bearer wearing a mask and gloves. I mean – seriously?! What is he protecting himself from? Is the corpse going to infect him with covid through the coffin? The picture borders on the utterly ludicrous. And here is the big point: This image has been chosen along with the title of the article itself as material for a psy-op. The associations have been calculated: coffins, plagues, masks, gloves, protection against a menace from beyond the grave – with all the attendant images of vampires and zombies.

And the inevitable graphs and pie-charts etc. All to give a simulation of scientific objectivity. I admit I never even look at those. I already know the PCR figures are bullshit anyway. All this is pure theatre.

It's a puppet play in which the puppets have no idea they are dancing to the strings.

So, from what I gather, the WHO changed their info re PCR testing within one hour of Biden's inauguration?

Yesterday, Sanofi and Merck declared that they were abandoning their search for a covid19 vaccine.

Today, the French dictatorship delayed their imposition of a renewed confinement and declared that the vaccination would no longer be available to healthcare workers – only to the elderly.

And, three or four days ago, Pfizer closed down their plant in Belgium, citing a delay of one week, which was then extended to four.

Hmm...

That must be in order to avoid rioting by people desperate to get their dose, as one French medic said he feared 😊

Fauci had said test was throwing up many false +ve results, while Trump was still in power, couple of months ago maybe..... his advice was just get vaccine.

so track and trace didn't work

mass testing didn't work

my best guess is mass vaccination won't work either.....they are using reverse psychology because not enough people are taking up offer of vaccination....

Just after Joe Biden TOOK the ORIFICE of President of the United State, WHO also stated that cycle counts on the PCR tests are too high. Which they have known for months.

Now that they have laid down the covering fire, give Biden's brilliant Covid policy a week to "work" and the CDC will recommend testing changes (virtually unreported by the press) that will dramatically lower the number of cases (but not deaths, they have been going down for months anyway). Result:

Biden proclaimed a genius and hero. I'm thinking Nobel Prize here. Maybe more than one.

I bet the next thing is reclassifying the numbers from dying with Covid to dying from Covid thereby reducing the death toll. Biden is going to claim it all. This has been a stitch up from the word go. Disgusting that they don't give a shit about all the damage they've caused just to score political points. I hope they all rot in hell.

Here is a link to a lecture by Marc Van Ranst, Belgian Flu Commissioner, at the ESWI/Chatham House Influenza Pandemic Preparedness Stakeholders Conference on 22 January 2019 (AKA "How to sell a Scamdemic"):

Communication and public engagement -
MARC VAN RANST - 9

ESWI

23:33

Van Ranst gives an amusing address enlivened by many jokes that exploit the ignorance of the public. At around the 2min mark he tells how to avoid the public and media accessing alternative voices. From about the 7min mark he describes how the normal, everyday death total can be falsely portrayed as pandemic deaths.

Please watch and promote this presentation which clearly and graphically demonstrates how the whole thing was orchestrated.

Actually, we've had signs like that since day 1, although it did seem to relax a bit in the all-too-short, heady days of summer last year. As I mentioned the other day, my local Waitrose has suddenly gone all full-on fascist.

"First they came for the immigrants, but I wasn't an immigrant, so I said nothing".

"Then they came for the working-class, but I wasn't working class, so I said for nothing".

"Then they came for the comfortable middle class – oh, that's me! – and there was no one left to speak up for me ...".

Where test results do not correspond with the clinical presentation, a new specimen should be taken and retested using the same or different NAT technology.

Not that the world is waiting for me to belatedly add to the chorus of 500 or so commenters, but the weaselspeak in the above quote leaped out at me.

First of all, it seems to me as if the WHO is still clinging to a pathetic fig leaf of respectability by admitting the plain truth that the PCR test is not a diagnostic tool (ergo, never should've been presented as one in the first place), but can still be a diagnostic “aid” if carefully administered in conjunction with a comprehensive, scrupulous clinical diagnosis.

Then they imply that the egregious misuse, or abuse, of this non-diagnostic test can be cured, or mitigated, by doubling down and administering a second non-test— a PCR test or a close relative!

Translation: if the first coin-toss yields an unacceptable result, we recommend a second toss of the same counterfeit coin or another denomination from the same mint.

Off topic and possibly trivial but I noticed recently that Amazon was no longer allowing comments on customer reviews. Explanation here:

<https://tamebay.com/2020/12/amazon-review-the-review-comment-feature-to-go.html>

The reason given for scrapping the comments feature on reviews is very simply that while reviews and feedback are important to Amazon's customers and sellers, the comments feature on customer reviews was rarely used.

Which is bullshit. I used it all the time and there were extensive comment threads after some reviews.

Yet another example of luring people into a cyber community only to increasingly constrain them till they end up with nothing?

Two excellent analogies by yourself regarding this Charade of Bullshit Baffling peoples Brains- I also have difficulty grasping how some people still think this is a “Real Pandemic”, along with the blank looks I get when commenting on it to associates- Its almost as if I am wearing my prescription Glasses and they all have Guide Dogs! #

As you say every minute detail of these so called News casts are choreographed and crafted to instil; a sense of Awe regarding this situation and its all an incredible Lie -A lie so big it seems that people cannot conceive it could possibly be anything but True -because everywhere you look you see the same Narrative being spewed out 24/7 -I could not believe the cheap shot Bullshit on Radio One the other day where they weave the narrative into the inane Babble that these presenters waffle on about—

The theme was a phone in line to ask people "How will you get your vaccine" It continued -"Are you a sleeve roller – or are you the Daring type who prefers to drop your garment off your shoulder to give the Alluring Look" – I mean this is beyond propaganda this is the Epitomy of Brain washing, listening to some of the people responding made me consider whether a quick Death for me via being hit by a meteorite whilst hanging out the washing – might be a Blessing -if this is what society has succumbed to – total trivia , Inane Bullshit , but cleverly designed to get responses from people – because lets face it – We all like talking about ourselves now days , The BBC are truly Masters at propaganda – mind you they have been at it since WW2 and have never stopped since then.

I see there were riots in Ten Cities In Holland yesterday evening – the Dutch are very Tolerant people , but it seems they have had enough of this Bullshit and can smell the Danger to their very existence – when are the rest of us going to follow suit I wonder.

In Germany, the district court in Weimar issued a significant ruling that is consistent with the current WHO assessment of inappropriate PCR testing. Conclusion: There was no 'epidemic situation of national importance', although the Bundestag continues to maintain this with a self-empowering law passed last summer.

At no time has the German health care system been in remote danger of being overwhelmed.

There is no excess mortality in Germany, there are only more old people dying at the age of 80 and above. But the state arbitrariness sends itself to prevent every „Covid-death" with a new guideline of „Zero Covid“. The basis is the PCR test which is completely unsuitable as a diagnosis as the WHO states.

German citizens are unaware that the WHO and now, for the first time, a German district court judge have confirmed the unsuitability of PCR tests.

The MSM report 24/7 of terrible mutations that justify every measure. Boris Johnson warns of worst possible mutations in UK so it must be true. Citizens who have mutated into Corona paranoiacs now want to enforce a vow of silence in public spaces. The subjects should not say a word behind their muzzles so that the most terrible pandemic of all times can finally be ended and no one dies of Corona anymore. The vaccination deaths and other deaths are completely irrelevant. People who refuse to be PCR tested, claiming their civil rights, and who will not accept house arrest if a bogus PCR test shows them to be a „virus superspreader" even though they are healthy, will be placed in quarantine at remote sites that are now being rapidly made available.

This is reported in the MSM and meets with great approval among the brainwashed citizens. The end justifies the means. Their ancestors saw it the same way. The blame for the economy being driven to the wall is not the government but the Corona deniers who wear a slipped mask when they go shopping.

The public prosecutor's office in Weimar, which is bound by instructions, is doing everything in its power to overturn the first verdict in Germany, which wants to have the lockdown lifted immediately so that the coronapanic can continue to be maintained until the mass vaccination of the German population with experimental mRNA vaccines has been completed. Meanwhile, the disenfranchised citizens are sent into hard lockdown. Everything is allowed again if the end justifies the means. Sorry for repetitions in the text but this is „das Leitmotiv“.

In Bavaria, no one is allowed to take the dog for a walk after 9 p.m.

The brainwashed catholics there would even report the participants of the last supper to the state minister markus Söder for distancing offenses.

Does that remind anyone?

Note:

I have difficulty posting on offg and cannot watch the Corbett report

Maybe it is coincidence and if not then let's remind ourselves to keep resisting the New Normal!

And Gwyn keep strong, don't take the vaccine!

Ade!

Here is the original court ruling.

The judge has deliberately dealt with each of the defendants' charges in extraordinary detail, they had a birthday party and thus violated the corona regulations, because he expects the objection of his colleagues who are bound by instructions and do not want the lockdown to be overturned.

It will now be very difficult for them to maintain the politically desired lockdown as every single charge must be refuted.

The name of the judge has been leaked and he has already been vilified in the press as a possible Querdenker and conspiracy theorist.

Yes, we are an obedient country. We also transported (relatively speaking) most Jews to concentration camps. And the only thing that is really safe here, is money. It is us who defined the first multinational cooperation: the East India Company (that looted Indonesia and bankrupted NL in 1800), so we have plenty experience in the how, and the why.

Having that said: a country doesn't define you, it is you who defines a country

C. 1972 or so, as a US teenager with a newly-acquired taste for "recreational drugs" and an unrequited curiosity about "free love", I was under the impression that both the Netherlands and Sweden were nations with enviably enlightened, progressive, relaxed, open-minded, socially (ergo, sexually) tolerant and permissive cultures. I assumed that this was, at least partly, because their respective national collective consciousnesses were not darkened, haunted, and hamstrung by a history of Puritanical or Victorian repression.

This fantasy was obviously based on wishful ignorance, seasoned by bits and pieces of information that I acquired by osmosis. I do think that there was some truth to it, but like the Sixties countercultural bloom, these perceived paradises turned out to be more of a bug (or "phase") than a profound, permanent feature.

The blairite Merkel is a stasi horror from East Germany. Indeed after the wall came down, the monsters from the East took control of the new unified Germany. Not that either Germany, post WW2, was anything other than a puppet state.

Few here know that after WW2, East and West Germany kept all the authoritarian nazi created population control laws. They were just rebranded, with the nazi language removed. This woman was arrested under a power originally introduced by the nazi regime.

The world was never the place the fabians fooled you into thinking it was across the 'good' years- instead the sheeple of the West were lulled to sleep by endless post-WW2 propaganda campaigns. The nasty shock of the New Normal is simply the scales dropping from your eyes.

"Wah, wah- I wanna go back to how it was before" is the cry of most on our side- problem is that 'reality' was entirely faked. Outside of the West, people always knew the monsters in power recruited dirty brutes from the dregs of society to control the masses- uniformed scum with no morals and no values save blind loyalty to their fellow goons.

But the BBC gave the droolers of Britain "Dixon of Dock Green", so the good little Brit believes in the idea of a 'decent' policeman. Now Dixon will unquestioningly smash his way into YOUR home if he thinks you dare to have a friend over. But don't worry- some hero-worshipped 'high' leftie or rightie will save you if only you give them your support.

I'd posted that piece myself last week and wondered about the different dates?

One Jan 13 and one Jan 20/21 (not that it takes away from what is said, just curious why)

I liked this sentence as well

"The cycle threshold (Ct) needed to detect virus is inversely proportional to the patient's viral load."

The higher the Ct + the lower the viral load = all those false positives.

And added this info to drive the point home

"Most PCR assays are indicated as an aid for diagnosis"

An aid for diagnosis. Clearly the PCR test is NOT, nor has it ever been a diviner of diagnosis. Despite the presentation.

diviner- forecaster, seer or prophet also god like force for diagnosis

It's all been very sleight of hand/misdirection and word magic. All along.

I could not recommend more highly the videos by NZ MD, Sam Bailey, on general health topics as well as COVID. She is such a breath of fresh air in the world of lies we currently inhabit.

In this video Sam analyses the fraudulent science applied in SARS-1 You will no doubt find some mirth in what she says in relation to a cave ... they love their caves, don't they? I wonder if there's some sort of connection to Plato's cave.

Apart from the fact that doctors who wink at their patients while delivering diagnoses are at the least unsettling, the video is a good, rigorous analysis of the a flawed methodology of couple of clinical studies of SARS along the lines of Ioannidis' more inclusive meta-analysis of the flawed methodology of many clinical studies in general a decade or so earlier.

However, at the very last moment and in full view of her guests, she then spits in the scientific-rigour soup she has so carefully prepared just before she serves it up.

Perhaps you, Petra, would care to definitively source, on her behalf, Pasteur's otherwise urban myth of a deathbed statement about microbes and terrain? Nor that, in virology, the virological terrain is not extremely important, as some post-john-Holland virlogists now question—on equally scientifically rigorous grounds—the orthodoxy of the neo-Darwinian paradigm that—like all such yesterday's fresh approaches that serve to advance yesterday's science until today reveals their inadequacies—is currently strangling the biological sciences in general.

"Ioannidis' more inclusive meta-analysis of the flawed methodology ..." which doesn't, unfortunately, include the fundamental flawed methodology involved in determining infection in the first place. We must always start with the fundamental problem of the lack of evidence of the alleged virus and its causal link to the virus illness in the first place. Immediately that you see a scientist is from an Ivy League university (or, indeed, has any kind of serious standing) you need to surely be on the alert for whatever "noise" they make not really addressing the key fraudulence.

Dr. Ioannidis on Results of Coronavirus Studies

Sam Bailey addresses the problem, if not 100% directly but close enough, though including in this video, "What is a COVID-19 case?"

All Hail the Reopening!

Jeffrey A. Tucker

—January 25, 2021

What a glorious thing the reopening is! After nearly a year of darkening times, the light has begun to dawn, at least in the US.

Given how incredibly political this pandemic has been from the beginning, many people smell a rat. Is it really the case that the reopening of the American economy, particularly in blue states, is so perfectly timed? Do the science and politics really line up so well?

These are questions for another day. And for the record, my own opinion is that the loosening of restrictions is timed well with the relaxing of public disease fear, from whatever source, political or through exhaustion or through a shift in the media narrative. In any case, it doesn't matter for now. What matters right now is that the astonishing destructiveness of lockdowns might be coming to an end.

For those of us inveighing against lockdowns for a full year, it's truly been a remarkable week. Restrictions are being loosened or are going away. We are finally getting some truth about the carnage. And we are even starting to see some elected officials being honest with us.

There's a Hole in Your Bucket, Dear Liza

In a recent piece posted on Off-Guardian, entitled, "The Only Lady Who Swallowed a Fly," Maribel Tuff advances the thesis, as best this Stateside writer can glean, that the "Coronavirus Crisis" is a U.S.-orchestrated production of "economic theatre." According to this account, "the US security agencies" responded to the "repo market crisis" of September 2019 by "pick[ing] a scenario off the shelf, [] the response to a deadly virus, which would produce the required financial shutdown, suppress bank activity, and create a world crisis big enough to eclipse the US economic crisis and produce a 'flight to safety' into the dollar, facilitating an economic induced coma, allowing time, a breathing space and justifying massive emergency QE injections into the US and world economy." It's so wildly convoluted in its financial-jargon-laced presentation that it's easy to mistake how pat it is as an explanation for a worldwide phenomenon that has precipitously immiserated swathes of humanity in countless nations.

Tuff attributes a global transformation truly without precedent to a relatively obscure financial snafu within a single state actor, and ignores the far more significant and unsettling components of the ongoing Great Reset, which to any objective observer unmistakably entails the forcible and permanent erasure of the whole of interpersonal society, down to the most granular level of human behavior, and even deeper: to the sub-cellular microbiological level.

Tuff manages to minimize the gravity of the Great Reset, and more strangely still, to excuse and even defend as "necessary" the unfathomable human suffering being mercilessly inflicted on the world's population by their own governments. Like an Anglo version of a "Qanon"-adherent, Tuff assures us that all will be well because well-meaning "white hats" are virtuously engaged in a "necessary dialog" respecting a "restructuring of the world banking system." Therefore:

...in one respect you can breathe a sigh of relief: world tyranny, forced vaccinations with harmful DNA changes, sterilisations, and mass genocide are not the main aims of this 'operation'. They may be the end result of it, if we are not careful, but I don't think they are the main aims.

What a "relief!" The "world tyranny" and "mass genocide" are only a side-effects! Well worth it for some sweet, sweet "restructured banking," I have no doubt. Trust the plan.

But who, exactly, are "we" in this sentence? And what's more, if democide and tyranny aren't the "aims," then how does it follow that they might be the unintended consequences of this "economic theatre?"

The brutal truth, which Tuff seems more interested in rationalizing than discovering, is that the political-economic entity known as the "United States" is being liquidated. Not preserved. The "dollar" will remain, but its prestige and "value" already evaporated years ago, when it was replaced with the "super-sovereign reserve currency" known as "Special Drawing Rights." The "United States," as that moniker is quasi-mythically understood, is already a ghost of itself; a straw dog draped in a tattered tiger-skin. Now, it's merely time for the "American People" to be let in on that little secret.

But the U.S. is not alone. This same process is taking its horrific course in every former nation-state in what is mythically known as "the West." The peoples of all those former nation-states are being cut off at the knees in a tumult of barbaric and cataclysmic austerity and trauma. The controlled economic demolition is designed to accustom all English-speaking and Western European peoples, including the Americans—who have taken for granted their effortless, inherited affluence for generations—to dramatically depressed living standards, economic uncertainty, and totalitarian subjugation. This is the perfected state of the Globalist project: a planetary, uniformly immiserated horde of faceless, servile, isolated humanoid drones.

This is not a tailored, improvised response to some limited problem, with limited goals. This is the culmination of an ancient plan to transform the human animal into a domesticated creature. Furthermore, the U.S. really doesn't hold any special place in the process anymore, except perhaps that the living standards of the American plebs have farther to fall than most others'. Maybe the U.S. is a deserving red herring for the unitary culprit, but the U.S. is merely one vehicle, and it is one that has served its purpose. This warhorse isn't being put to pasture; it's been carted to the knacker's.

Tuff seems to want to prop up the corpse of the U.S. for one last party at Bernie's beachfront pad, casting it as the overbearing, browbeating villain. But to support this narrative, she deliberately ignores libraries-worth of relevant material, concerning foreknowledge (from Rockefeller Foundation's Lock Step to Fauci's precognitive prediction that Trump would oversee a "surprise" outbreak); planning of the operation (Event 201); and meticulous, copiously documented and public plans for what to do with all the humans after they are "reset." These omissions are far too numerous and voluminous to address, as are her faulty assumptions, contradictions, distorted analogies, glaring fallacies, and just-plain-crude composition and lack of editing.

In fact, when Off-Guardian's moderators encouraged other readers to offer "rebuttals" to Tuff's piece, I felt inclined to take a crack. But reading it closely enough to respond in kind revealed such a lamentable lack of substance that a full-blown rebuttal would only lend it undue dignity. Upon dissection, it yielded only the hallmarks of a trolling effort. Too sprawling to rebut in brief; too flimsy, inconsistent and conceptually incoherent to merit a deep response. After drafting a few attacks from different angles, I found that each one read as much ado about less than nothing. I decided it wasn't worth my time.

But then, astonishingly, on Monday morning it showed up on LewRockwell.com!? What is going on here? How is such an amateurish and intellectually dishonest screed getting such traction in the prestigious wing of the Dissent-O-Sphere? The only explanation I can come up with is that it appeals to the financial-machination fetishism that so often gives undeserved attention to commentators who reduce every historical event to some technical-ized Wall Street "crisis" that barely oozed to the surface of the public consciousness.

PSEUDO-QUANTITATIVE PETTIFOGGERY

Much of the length of Tuff's piece is devoted to making a show of "Wall Street cred" with the sort of big-dollar razzle-dazzle that financial commentators and hustlers routinely use on rubes to cast the illusion of specialized authority. Citing a blog called, "Born2Invest," she tells us that in September 2019, the "inter-banking interest rate" reached the "terrifying" level of 10%. Truly a day that will live in infamy. I guess. This revelation is designed specifically to make the reader feel inferior, ashamed not to know whether 10% is “terrifyingly” high or “terrifyingly” low, or what on Earth the repo rate even is. It is further filigreed with lots of scary-sounding but entirely decontextualized numbers-in-a-vacuum: $75 Billion here, $9 Trillion there. All very impressive, one is meant to believe. Not anything like your typical day of fiscal brinksmanship among international financiers.

Then there is a graph. Graph goes down. Graph goes down...bad?

Well, I suppose it must be bad, because according to Tuff, it unavoidably demanded...a faked virus pandemic?

This rhetorical and quantitative sleight-of-hand is designed to both cow the reader with mysterious portentousness, and to bore the reader to tears so as to prevent any scrutiny. To illustrate the supreme importance of the “repo rate,” which of course nobody ever heard of until it threatened to Destroy Capitalism as We Know It, Tuff offers only the Wikipedia entry for the topic, which is flagged by Wikipedia's editors as both slanted by personal opinion, and so technical as to be useless to a layman. Yet, Tuff would have us believe it is the impetus for the plight and misery of every man, woman and child on Earth. As an explanation, therefore, the “repo crisis” (it's hard not to yawn just typing that) is both inscrutably complicated, and reductively pat. Tuff purports to “explain” one phenomenon by reference to another phenomenon that the reader has never heard of, and makes an argument the reader has no reliable means of verifying or disproving. This technique only replaces one putative mystery (the Origin of the CoronaHoax) with another, true mystery (the Central Role of Repurchase Agreements to the World Order). But notice: the new mystery is rarified, understood (supposedly) only by specialists, mind-numbingly boring in its essence, and completely beyond the influence of the reader. The intended effect is that the reader feels satisfied that there is an explanation, even if the reader doesn't understand that explanation one bit. As a practical matter, it's like being told that the whole thing is due to gravitational forces from a comet that just passed between the orbits of Jupiter and Saturn. (And it's just as likely to be true, and equally supported by empirical evidence, incidentally.)

Like the philosophers who seek to “explain” the mystery of human consciousness by saying, “It's quantum mechanics!” Tuff purports simply to swap one mystery for another. But worse still, she seeks to “explain” something that's not a mystery at all with something that is one. There is more than ample public documentation of the plan-in-process to demolish capitalism as we know it (“repo crisis” or not), penetrate every human body with injections, conscript every body to a blockchain identity surveilled in real-time by a Total Information Awareness panopticon, and manage humanity as a Herd of two-legged livestock.

One suspects that if Dear Henry asked Little Miss Tuffit, “With what shall I fix it?” she would reply in a sanguine coo, “With patience, Dear Henry. With patience.”

Couldn't it be both, fact checker?

I had heard Maribel's theory regarding the repo situation, months ago from John Titus, the economist. It made sense to me then, and makes sense now to a certain degree.

I found Tuff's article very interesting. The 2008 financial debacle and the Wall st fraud did a huge amount of damage in the ensuing years. I saw and experienced it. It would not surprise me if the skullduggery continued and brought us to another about-to-collapse in 2019.

I understand your argument about the plan having been in the works for years, and all of your references. Could the financial situation, coupled with Kary Mullis very convenient death the month before (Aug '19) have provided the perfect storm?

Winner, winner, chicken dinner. The 2008 bailout and crisis was purposefully created to fleece people. To the – actually real, whatever ‘Fact Checker’ may assert – repo crisis, add in Dmitry Orlov's assertion that the ‘epidemiological’ crisis is in reality a petrochemical crisis. That's to say, a deliberately-induced way of crashing demand for fossil-hydrocarbon fuels as a response to their remorselessly-falling net global EROEI (qv), and the wholly inescapable consequence of long-term global economic shrinkage (aaaaargh! foul dirty word!!! FFS say ‘negative growth’, can't you!) which these – fundamentally irreversible – energy constraints are now enforcing on ALL economic activity.*

The hard-faced realistic response to energy constraints is to kill a wide range of inessential economic activity – the ‘hospitality’ businesses, and mass air-tourism, for a couple of prime examples – and to screw down severely even the essentials. Basic economic manipulation, to lessen the total destructiveness of the long-term global economic contraction, which is now baked into our planetary cake. Especially to safeguard the multibillionaires' dragon-hoards from such contraction, of course: Plebs must starve en masse before the Bellender Gatesoids lose even so much as a penny.

This is exactly what's now happening.

Dmitry also flagged the – actually-genuine – repo crisis when it first showed up, and described it as a clear signal that the US dollar, and US treasury paper, were finally getting unmasked as empty fiats, of no genuine value; a sure sign of the demise of the almighty world-dollar (and the ushering in of what Jim Willie at ‘The Golden Jackass’ calls ‘the new shite-dollar’, for home use only, as the global financial structures built around the world-dollar collapse).

These hard-faced, ruthlessly-realistic motivations seem to be what's really behind the covid scam.

*Don't kid yourself about 'renewables' to the rescue. Never going to deliver more than a small fraction of current world energy demand, and ALL fatally dependent on fossil-hydrocarbon energy subsidies, to exist at all. Nuclear power too...

Go here, <https://tradingeconomics.com/united-states/repo-rate>, press the 25 year button on the graph, and you will see that yes, the repo rate has been climbing for a couple of years, but compare that to 2008 and 2000 and you will see that we are in a similar blip – note that overall rates have declined significantly since 2000, so the chart is somewhat skewed.

Scientists and epidemiologists (funded by the NIH-DARPA, Gates and Rockefeller Foundations) at the start of this process and all the way through, have not proven any novel virus exists, was discovered in Wuhan, or anywhere else.

SARSCov2 still has not been isolated and purified. A molecule must be isolated and purified first to prove its existence. The RT-PCR test was created and manufactured before the computer generated genome was published.

The tests are based on a hypothetical virion that has not been physically characterized with valid scientific tools, but supposedly results in a disease called Covid19. Covid19 consists of so many vague and common symptoms, this alleged illness could apply to anyone with a headache, cough or fever. Even an upset stomach.

The primers used in the fraudulent PCR test share sequence commonality with our own genome.

A virus is a construct to explain epidemiological coincidences where multiple people in communities share similar symptoms. That in itself, does not prove contagion, viral transmission or viral infection.

Instead of exploring alternative reasons for seasonal outbreaks that antibiotics didn't resolve, scientists and doctors who were affiliated with the Rockefeller medical vaccine cartel; classified multiple symptoms and illnesses as viral, then declared they were driven through human contagion without scientific proof, evidence or experimental data.

If viruses were transmissible from person to person then doctors, epidemiologists and scientists should be able to easily demonstrate this phenomenon, repeatedly, in experiments and studies.

After the 1918 Spanish flu, medical and military experiments were conducted in the US to prove contagion, using hundreds of humans and animals. All efforts to show contagion resulted in failure. To date, proving human to human transmission has never been achieved. Virologists cannot show contagion in vitro (in the lab), in vivo (animal studies) in clinical trials or human studies.

Virologists have never been able to show replication of alleged virions in healthy human cell cultures.

How is contagion calculated? In computer models, such as those created by disgraced hacks such as Neil Ferguson.

When attempting to validate any scientific theory through experimental and empirical data, using inductive reasoning, one must first attempt to invalidate the hypothesis, using refinement and controls, in order to rule out all possible alternative explanations. That is the basis of the scientific method.

Pointed questions about the pseudoscience of virology and vaccines should be freely discussed by all doctors and scientists, the world over instead of accepting consensus and censorship without question. Smearing those who don't accept consensus as anti-vaxxers or anti-science is the tactic of criminals, concealing a racketeering operation. Our futures and our children depend on us to insist on the truth and nothing but the truth.

If we intend to use logic, let's begin with first principles instead of taking the word of the questionably funded hacks and science shills like Christian Drosten et al, at the core of this global scam.

'Real' FAKE evidence is a problem, no matter how carefully constructed. It is better to have the mainstream media spread lies that the powers-that-be can deny later. Myths and fables mistaken for facts, and then treated by government spokespeople as 'facts', as with Saddam's WMDs.

However the claim that viruses don't exist, or that viral infections do not cause illness is pathetic- and is the FLAT EARTH disinfo ploy used to weaken our side.

Take the VERY REAL stomach ulcer- known about for centuries. However until only a few years ago, EVERYTHING taught about the cause and cure of stomach ulcers was FAKE NEWS garbage- but the same 'medical' textbooks taught the incorrect nonsense to generations of students through the 20th century, and as a result millions of sufferers were mistreated. Only when at the end of the 20th century did two Australian scientists finally take a new look and discover the TRUE cause of the ulcer, was a correct treatment created. However the FACT that the entire medical community was wrong about the nature of the stomach ulcer for the longest time did not mean the stomach ulcer did not exist, and did not need treating.

So we can know viral infections EXIST without having a good understanding of why and how. Lacking the knowledge of why and how is NOT proof viral infections are fake news.

Part of the Scientific Method is OBSERVATION. The Common Cold spreads when it spreads, and at other times does not. But the times when it does not spread do NOT disprove the times when it does spread.

The virus is 'mysterious' since it is not alive, and yet has the higher structure associated with life. It is closer to a 'mechanism' within a living body, yet is observed to be the mechanism of moving genes between species (even between animal and plant).

The 'plague' narrative intentionally uses the 'controversy' about the nature and purpose of viruses to confuse and distract. Noise swamping the signal. Saying the truth- Covid19, even if there is such a virus, is not infecting people across the world- is not the same as claiming viruses don't exist.

Really stupid people think circumstantial evidence is not evidence, and will always 'argue' on the basis of a lack of 'direct' evidence.

"Really stupid people" don't understand there never was any evidence for viruses and there still is not. Illness and disease has no viral cause.

Every molecule in existence can be isolated then physically characterized, analyzed and validated using methods such as Electron microscopy (EM) Cryogenic electron microscopy (cryo-EM) : Matrix-assisted laser desorption ionization-time of flight mass spectrometry (MALDI – TOF MS) : Nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) and Crystallography. Ah, not to be nitpicky but saying viruses definitely do exist because people get colds at the end time is not sufficient proof of transmissibility or contagion. Can you point to the study showing human to human transmission of a virus? Because as Researcher says, they tried with the Spanish flu and not one person out of 100 became sick. And as far as I'm aware there isn't other studies showing this.

I don't know whether viruses do or don't exist to be honest, but alluding to "stupid people" and then offering no evidence other than "because colds" is not really adding anything to the discussion

Brass,

You have been seduced by the wonton deceptions of the medical cartel that has perpetuated the lie of viral contagion for over one hundred years, and has got away with it.

They got away with it after the Rockefeller business model ousted all others who were not trained allopaths shaming them out of business as quacks.

There is no science to explain the reactions of the human body to an insult of toxicity.

Even traditional Chinese medicine refers to the illness of the cold wind pathogen which throws up all of the symptoms that we know as a "virus".

The medical/pharma industry will one day collapse and that will be the collapse of a mighty empire that put profit before health, and which could never explain how it is that viruses cause disease.

I don't think your example about ulcers is sound. I speak as someone who almost died from a perforated ulcer. It would take too long to go into but the idea that some bacteria 'causes' ulcers is typical of the Rockefeller school. Agreed, and you beat me to it.

This circus act is not accidental, it's all controlled/planned, albeit on the fly to the public reaction.

There has to be an exit strategy for the flu scam, it can't go on forever.. Make no mistake all this lock down bullshit effects their families too. Perhaps this is the end of phase one.

The bullshit is coming down the pipe thick and fast. People may be being obedient for fear of loosing a job or getting a penalty. However, I believe the majority have lost total confidence in the official story and the gig is up.

We need to know if the new guidance is being followed by governments and their medical advisers and has this advice been sent to the testing team and the testing laboratories.

There has been no mention of this anywhere in the MSM.

The WHO are covering their asses against impending legal action and of course to give the impression the 'vaccine' works.

I'll do a FOI request and ascertain are they following this new protocol for testing.

I have noticed a common approach to this vax with the ones who "signed up for it". Granted that some are criminally stupid and gasping for the wretched poison to protect themselves from the Big Bad Nasty Nasty. But I think the vast majority think of it in legal terms i.e. they are actually not happy taking it but feel they have to in order to get back some kind of normality.

The media has been playing a dirty little game of leading everyone on with just the right amount of hope ("Hopefully when everyone has had the vax we'll get back to some sense of normality") whilst darkly murmuring the opposite ("To ensure safety for all, we will not be able to lift the restrictions for the foreseeable future even if everyone has the vax")

And then there are the more realistic ones who, when asked if they're going for the juice, just nod their heads whilst rolling their eyes as if to say, "It's all shit but I suppose I'd better. Don't want to make waves" etc. I reckon these ones think in terms of just hanging on and paying lip service to whatever bullshit comes next.

So there is the sad array of the vax takers:

- the panic stricken morons who think the vax is really going to shield them from nasty little evil pixies
- the more pragmatic ones who suspect it's all shit but think they have to go along to get their old lives back (HAI)
- the ones who are just going along to "get with the programme" because they don't want to stand out

You are spot on. Unfortunately we have far too many willing sheep who don't mind being vaccinated tagged and tracked like the herd of docile animals certain global players want us all to be. The new "vaccines" are not even vaccines in the traditional sense and are actually injectable mRNA gene "therapy" drugs. These can be tweaked, adjusted and modified anytime the elite players dictate what they want from the human herd by programming our cells to produce various proteins. The semi harmless current versions are just the start of much more radical technologies involving nano-technologies which will be smuggled into our cells via lipid coatings. The ultimate aim is transhumanism which is an advanced slave system.

mRNA should never be injected into a human being it is unethical and immoral....but I doubt ttb are unconcerned. The vaccines that are being pedaled around now all have nano lipid particles in them.

My husband is pressuring me to submit to testing so we can take a trip to Mexico in a couple months (you need a negative test to get back from there now). I'm against testing, and I'm fighting with him about our daughter being tested. We haven't talked vax yet but I'm bracing myself for a battle.

I don't know about Mexico, but of the countries that I'm familiar with (know people who have travelled to and from them) the test needs to be taken (and "passed") within 72 hours of the time of travel. So you have to allow time for getting the result of your test back (typically 24 hours in the UK). Quite apart from the principles involved, this causes tricky practical problems, especially when flights become limited, as they have been.

Good luck with your trip anyway.

Thanks Mike. It looks like the nearest testing site to where we go in Mexico is about an hour, and costs are $100-$200 per person for the test. If we got stuck there (tested pos) it'd be another 2 weeks off work and school for our kid. I don't know how it's sustainable.

Try telling your husband that by all the rules of science covid-19 doesnot exist

It has not been identified

it has not been transcribed

it does not produce antibodies

No antibodies have been recovered from the plasma of a 'survivor'

There can be no test for it if it does not exist.....so what is it +ve or -ve for ?

It therefore follows that with all of the above being present, no vaccine can exist to provide immunity to a non existant virus. Indeed, even the BBC propaganda team will tell you, you are still not immune if you have been vaccinated and you can indeed still pass covid-19 on even if your PCR test is -ve you can still pass on covid-19.

Getting to Mexico in a couple of months may be ruled out anyway because of covid regulations, so don't beat yourself up about it.

It fell apart shortly after though when he asked what Mullis thinks today about Covid and I said with a raised eyebrow "Hard to say, he died of pneumonia in fall 2019." To which my husband replied "I hate that conspiracy stuff" and moved on.

I have tried to tell him before that the virus is not proven real but it's just too much at this juncture. But I do feel we are getting closer.

It doesn't matter now.

The narrative has been established.

Testing produces positives

Positives = cases

This conditioning has an efficacy greater than 50%.

The emergency legislation is in force.

'Protecting the majority' will be the call.

Facts are meaningless in a post truth society.

Initially we will be expected to self identify

We will tick the boxes, on websites on forms when 'interacting' with govt

Then our actions or inactions will be assessed and our identifying traits established

Finally we will have our identities assigned

These are the first faltering steps towards the tyranny they intend imposing.

Exposing their lies is the only way to stop this.

Truth is the only weapon

False positive tests have created the cases which have justified the laws that have empowered the authorities to impose the curfew to suppress the population to create the poverty to seize our property and enslave us

Probably.

Unfortunately, for those who only use the TV and MSM, this is an unbelievable narrative They truly believe our benevolent Dear Leader only has our interests at heart. That our Govt is here to protect us and the BBC is the only source of trust and truth.

But what if ?

Just what, what if it was all true ?

What would, or could we all do ?

What If this is all a scam ?

That all that's happening is to a plan.

I know that sounds obscene

For the very thought of it would mean

That were witness to the the most heinous crime

Of theft and murder in our Time

Are we all becoming so feeble ?

That we Scurry home to await a needle

We avert our eyes and cannot look

Or bare to see just what they took

First they took your friends away

You cannot meet, pass time of day.

Then they took away your face

An infectious rag has took its place.
Then they took away your job
It was Nonessential, said Klaus Schwab.
Next to go was all your money
I will admit that wasn't funny
After that they took your car
No point to it you can't go far.
Foreign travel is not for you.
That's something else you must not do.

Then what you ask, will remain
Why your bills of course will remain the same.
You must be prompt and pay your taxes
Your Govt never relaxes
The corporation's too demand of you
The balance of all thats due.
Can't pay, why you can always borrow.
You can pay us all back tomorrow.
Those Ancient tricks of Babylon
Will suffice to see this phase well done.

Oh they won't have finished yet.
There's even more they plan to get.

This last lockdown is totally fraudulent, done by simply renaming the flu as covid, except it wasn't even a bad flu year in the UK this year, it normally drives the NHS to breaking point, but this year not so much. The lock downs are intended to terrify the population into taking the vaccine.

France has been late in distributing the vaccine so their last 'terror attack' comes later, In a few days they will announce another hard lock down like the UK, to terrify the population into taking the pointless vaccine. It is official in France that the flu does not exists anymore and only Covid exists.

Any sane journalist would be able to point this out, but they don't. Q: Minister are you really claiming the flu no longer exists? Q: Arn't you really just trying to scare the public to take the vaccine?

All lockdowns in the west were fraudulent, based on no hard epidemiological data but on wild and wrong models from usual suspects from UCL and Gates gang that got their projections wrong in all WHO declared pandemics before. By early March Chinese figured out or knew already that lockdowns and hospitalizations of mild to moderate "COVID" patients only accelerate PCR casademic. They stopped hard lockdowns opted for quarantines of individuals with no or mild symptoms, later they drop PCR as a diagnostic tool altogether. US, UK and EU knew it, ignored it and attacked China accusing them of suppressing infection numbers and COVID deaths and involvement in biological attack in Wuhan.

"By early March Chinese figured out or knew already that lockdowns and hospitalizations of mild to moderate "COVID" patients only accelerate PCR casademic."

The trans-national corporate control apparatus has been in control of China for well over a century. The people in direct control of China are following the same playbook as the people in control of the US, Canada, Germany or Russia (et al). China has been an early adopter of all the techno-fascist horrors (eg chipped consumers, social credit surveillance etc) scheduled for the rest of the colonized territories. Which explains why China (which didn't have an industrial revolution of its own until very recently : "China's industrial revolution, which started 35 years ago, is perhaps one of the most important economic and geopolitical phenomena since the original Industrial Revolution 250 years ago...") has access to the cutting edge tech required to pull this nightmare off.

Nobody at the top of any of the power-pyramids representing the various nation states, around the world, thinks, or ever thought, they're fighting an actual virus. This Global Plan has been decades in the making.

It's really as though, deep into an undeclared War, the aggressors are putting the finishing touches on a POW camp they've been quietly building up, around "The Enemy," for thirty years. We are that "Enemy" and most of us won't even notice when the paint is dry on the front gate... and it swings shut.

WHO, held captive by funders and ill-intentioned governmentns for past several years, has played a major role in spreading the 'covid' hoax.

If WHO is truly saying that there are flaws in the PCR test then a few things must happen:

1. It must be held legally liable for earlier allowances it made on the test, and not calling out the flaws in March last year itself. Several governments (blindly or deliberately) followed WHO's protocol on the flawed tests.
2. All governments and all non-government players who use PCR and antigen tests to determine so-called 'infection with sars-cov-2 virus' must halt all testing.

Take a look at how obsessed some entities still are to the testing process. It is from today's press release of IATA, the airlines body (<https://www.iata.org/en/pressroom/pr/2021-01-27-01/>):
"Many governments are implementing testing regimes to facilitate travel, which IATA supports. Germany and the US, for example, are taking advantage of the rapid improvement in testing technologies to accept PCR and antigen testing to safely manage the risks of travel. While rapid antigen tests are preferred for their speed and cost advantages, it is clear that PCR testing will play a role as many governments are requiring tests within a 48- to 72-hour window prior to travel."

 I have been drawing this medieval analogy for some time:
 Scientists – priests
 The NHS – church (place of worship; whatever)
 Covid 19 – the demon Ko' Vid and his legions
 Masks – rosaries
 The media – the Inquisition
 The jab – holy water
 'Anti vaccers' – witches.
 We hear how people are 'praying' for salvation and protection: praying at the altar of the new church headed by the new priests. These are the new faithful, ever on the look out for heresy and the practioners of that heresy. siad Criag

We don't hear about any banks complaining about lost profits during the lockup pandemic.

And now we discover that there are "46 newly minted (US) billionaires since the beginning of the pandemic."

"Billionaires are reaping unseemly windfalls of wealth during the pandemic. They benefit from having their competitors shut down or controlling technologies and services we are all dependent on in this unprecedented time. We should tax these windfall gains to pay for recovery."

Now that is the name of the game, isn't it. Always follow the Davos Dandies and their money.

The existing power structure in every Western country will use, "civil war," as cover to liquidate the problem part of the population to, "build back better," under global technofascism enforced under medical martial law.

They are almost done with Covid as the prime driver.

It will continue as a method of social control:

- masks to limit freedom of speech
- distancing to limit freedom of assembly
- passports to limit freedom of travel
- safety/unity to limit freedom to petition or demonstrate
- Creationtide to replace freedom of religion

This year we will segue from Covid to a new hacking/digital scenario — I quoted Klaus Schwab in a previous post. Our saviours will tell us that they saved us with their Lockdowns, while they ransacked and looted the economy. We will be told to trust them and hold their hand as they lead us into the next stage. A digital ID-monetary system will be the physical aspect of that “trust”

I'm afraid you've summed up the whole mechanism i.e. the “science” the MSM drones on about so sanctimoniously was only ever a prop to them. They take the bits that are useful for their purpose and totally discard the rest. And when they are rumbled the rumbling takes place in the small print i.e. it is never permitted to reach a wide audience – in fact it's worse than that!

Even if this inarguable scientific DISproval of the whole scam gets out to a wide audience, the snowball is already rolling, and you can expect the wound up muppets to continue spouting their gospel learned by catechism.

This response by the WHO is indicative of them being complicit in the biggest human rights crime ever. These organisations including the UN must be taken to task and defunded. It is a crime against humanity.
